IT IS WITH LOVE AND DEEP APPRE-CIATION THAT THIS CHERRY TREE
IS DEDICATED TO THE WISE MENTOR
AND WORTHY MARINER, WILLIAM
ALLEN WILBUR, WHOSE KNOWLEDGE
AND GUIDANCE HAVE HELPED STEER
OUR FRAIL CRAFTS THROUGH STORM
AND SUNSHINE, EVER SYMPATHETIC,
GRACIOUS AND LOYAL, BELOVED
FIRST MATE OF OUR SHIP.

NO PORTRAIT OF PROVOST WILBUR BETTER EXEMPLIFIES THE INFLUENCE OF THE SEA ON HIS LIFE THAN THE ONE NOW HANGING IN CORCORAN HALL, PAINTED BY THE ARTIST RICHARD S. MERYMAN. THE BACKGROUND VIVIDLY RECALLS A TRADITION IN THE WILBUR FAMILY, OF HOW HIS FATHER, ONE OF THE LAST MASTERS OF THE FAMOUS CLIPPER SHIPS, AND HIS BROTHER, ALSO A CLIPPER CAPTAIN, WHO HAD NOT SEEN EACH OTHER FOR YEARS, PRAYED THAT THEY MIGHT SOON MEET. SHORTLY AFTERWARDS, EVEN THOUGH NEITHER HAD ANY IDEA OF THE OTHERS WHEREABOUTS, THEIR SHIPS MET IN A STORM OFF CAPE HORN, AND ALTHOUGH BOARDING EITHER OF THE VESSELS WAS IMPOSSIBLE, THEY TALKED FROM SHIP TO SHIP THROUGH MEGAPHONES.

HISTORY OF THE UNIVERSITY

An American renaissance, religious and national, created Columbian College in the City of Washington, in 1821.

The religious motive was the Modern Missionary Enterprise affecting all the churches, marked by the Haystack Prayer Meeting in Williams College which gave to the world Luther Rice and his ministry. This missionary awakening organized the Baptist Churches into a Denomination, and projected Columbian College with a free charter. Contributions to this enterprise came from Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia, and over the grave of Luther Rice in South Carolina is written, "He founded Columbian College in the District of Columbia, which he benevolently intended, by its central position, to diffuse knowledge, both literary and religious, through these United States."

The national motive was left in the hearts of his countrymen by George Washington, who wished for a University in the District of Columbia, to which from all the States youths of fortune and talent might be sent to complete their education in the principles of politics and good government, and "as a matter of infinite importance" by forming friendships to free themselves of local prejudices and jealousies. He dreamed of organizing friendship and making it American.

In 1819, subscriptions to establish the College in Washington were made by members of the Cabinet, John Quincy Adams, William H. Crawford, John C. Calhoun, William Wirt, Return J. Meigs, and by thirty-two members of Congress, and President Monroe said, "This institution, if it receives hereafter the proper encouragement, cannot fail to be eminently useful to the nation."

In 1825, an official bulletin of the College states, "The importance of a college at this place had impressed the minds of a few individuals, encouraged and sustained by the strong representations of the great Washington and his illustrious successors, they conceived the design and entered upon the undertaking."

At the first commencement in 1824, there were present President Monroe, John Quincy Adams, John G. Calhoun, Henry Clay, and the Marquis de Lafayette.

Among the presidents of the Corporation there have been Obadiah B. Brown, Col. James L. Edwards, Amos Kendall, William W. Corcoran, Samuel H. Greene, John B. Larnier.

Thirteen men have filled the presidency and they have been of a company of scholars that established the American College, and gave it the fine phrase "a gentleman and a scholar." These men came from Princeton, Harvard, Hamilton, Yale, Brown, Columbian, Lake Forest, Stanford.

A new vision is emergent with the new name, with the ancient freedom emphasized by a non-denominational provision in the charter, and with a new order of modern efficiency. With seven thousand students, affiliated with twenty-two religious bodies, from all parts of the Union, as representative as the National Congress, the new University is fulfilling old dreams—"diffusing knowledge through these United States"—"eminently useful to the nation."

President Marvin has guided the advance through seven notable years. The way of truth is a narrow way, but it leads to the Delectable Mountains.

WILLIAM ALLEN WILBUR.

PRESIDENT Cloyd Heck Marvin has the aid of able assistants in the handling of his many and varied duties. The burden of the finances of the University is relieved by Charles Wendell Holmes, Comptroller, while Harold Griffith Sutton and Fred Everett Nessell take care of certifying and registering the students. The Summer Sessions is supervised by Robert Whitney Bolwell, and John Russell Mason, Librarian, makes learning matter available to the students. Vinnie Giffen Barrows, as Director of Women's Personnel Guidance, and Daniel LeRay Borden, Director of Health Administration, fill successfully these positions. The students of foreign countries find a friend in Alan Thomas Deibert, their adviser.

THE GRADUATE COUNCIL

The City of Washington, as is universally recognized, possesses unparalleled resources in trained personnel for the direction and prosecution of scholarship and in source materials. These resources the University makes available for a carefully selected group of students, capable of mature and creative research, through the Graduate Council.

Candidates for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy must be admitted to fellowship in the Graduate Council through examination. At the time of examination the candidate, in consultation with the Chairman, designates a master with whom he wishes to undertake research work. Upon admission to the Council, he becomes responsible to his master of research alone in the development of his special work and in the preparation of his dissertation. He is given the privileges of membership in the Graduate Council, including participation in its general meetings and the unrestricted use of all academic facilities of the University. Under arrangements made by the Council the Fellow may be referred by the master of research to other institutions for special study.

After completion of the Fellow's research, a Final Examination Committee is appointed, composed of at least five members of the Graduate Council and at least two visiting examiners from other research institutions who are qualified experts in the Fellow's special field. In this final examination the Fellow defends orally his doctoral dissertation in relation to the field of learning in which it lies. Upon successful completion of the final examination, and upon recommendation of the Council, the Fellow is presented to the Board of Trustees for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

CLOYD HECK MARVIN
Chairman

The Graduate Council consists of the President of the University, and Chairman of the Graduate Council, Cloyd Heck Marvin, Ph.D., LL.D., and the following professors: William Allen Wilbur, A.M., Litt.D., LL.D.; Paul Bartsch, Ph.D.; George Neely Henning, A.M., Litt.D.; William Carl Ruediger, Ph.D.; Ray Smith Bassler, Ph.D.; DeWitt Clinton Croissant, Ph.D.; Charles Edward Hill, Ph.D.; Thomas Benjamin Brown, Ph.D.; William Cabell Van Vleck, A.B., LL.B., S.J.D.; George Bain Jenkins, M.D.; Henry Grattan Doyle, A.M.; Robert Fiske Griggs, Ph.D.; John Donaldson, Ph.D.; Samuel Flagg Bemis, Ph.D.; Walter Lewis Moll, A.B., LL.B., S.J.D.; George Byron Roth, A.B., M.D.; Colin Mackenzie Mackall, Ph.D.; Walter Andrew Bloedorn, A.M., M.D.; Edward Henry Sehr, Ph.D.; Robert Whitney Bolwell, Ph.D.; Fred August Moss, Ph.D., M.D.; William Cullen French, Ph.D.; James Henry Taylor, Ph.D.; Willard Hayes Yeager, A.M.; Dudley Wilson Willard, Ph.D.; Earl Baldwin McKinley, A.B., M.D.; Errett Cyril Albritton, A.B., M.D.; Vincent du Vigneaud, Ph.D.; Edward Bright Vedder, Sc.D., M.D.; William John Cooper, A.M., Ed.D., LL.D., Litt.D., Sc.D., Pd.D.; Albert Spear Hitchcock, Sc.D.; Neil Everett Stevens, Ph.D.; Ralph Edward Gibson, Ph.D.; Joseph Quincy Adams, Ph.D., Litt.D.; Warren Reed West, Ph.D.; Alva Curtis Wilgus, Ph.D.; Lowell Joseph Ragatz, Ph.D., and Leland Wilbur Parr, Ph.D.

THE SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

The School of Medicine was established in March, 1825, under the leadership of Doctor Thomas Sewall. The first building was erected by the professors of the new school but later the school took over quarters in the United States Infirmary, which building was consumed by fire while in use afterwards as a military hospital during the Civil War. During this time the School of Medicine was housed in a building given by Mr. W. W. Corcoran and afterwards occupied by the Surgical Museum. On June 7, 1882, the University authorized and subsequently erected on H Street between 13th and 14th Streets a building which is now the older wing of the University Hospital and has been used for this purpose since 1897. In 1898 a new wing of the hospital was completed and in 1902 the present building of the School of Medicine was erected adjacent to the University Hospital. In 1932 an additional laboratory building was constructed adjoining the hospital and connected with the School of Medicine.

The School of Medicine has had many illustrious figures of the medical profession on its faculty. In 1833 it conferred the degree of Doctor of Medicine upon William Beaumont. Besides a host of prominent clinicians, such as Dr. Kerfoot Shute, Dr. J. W. Bovee, Dr. Sterling Ruffin, Dr. William K. Butler, and Dr. William Cline Borden, it numbers among its past faculty members such names as those of Dr. Theobald Smith, Dr. Walter Reed and Dr. Frederick F. Russell, all internationally known in their respective fields.

THE JUNIOR COLLEGE

The Junior College of The George Washington University was established by the Board of Trustees in June, 1930, as one phase of a general program of reorganization of the University. Freshman and sophomore years of Columbian College were separated from the junior and senior years and assigned to an autonomous Junior College. At the present time the Junior College is comprised of all regular freshman and sophomore work in the University except that offered in the School of Engineering.

In establishing the Junior College it was also provided that a Junior College Certificate should be awarded as a diploma upon completion of the Junior College course. The Trustees voted that this certificate should be required for admission to the senior colleges and to the professional schools.

The Junior College affords a better transition between the secondary school and the University. It makes for a more homogeneous grouping of students. It provides for more effective guidance of students through an advisory system with a board of advisers always available.

This unification of the lower division student bodies of the University affords better correlation of the social and recreational activities of freshmen with the problems of scholarship. Technically, it simplifies registration, helps in attendance supervision, and makes possible closer cooperation with parents and with the secondary schools.

COLUMBIAN COLLEGE

The Reverend Luther Rice, a Baptist missionary, in 1819 organized a group of friends to buy land upon which to establish a college in the City of Washington. Among the early patrons of this institution were Secretary of Treasury William H. Crawford, Secretary of War John C. Calhoun, the Attorney General William Wirt, the Postmaster General R. F. Meigs, and 32 members of Congress.

Columbian College was chartered during the presidency of James Monroe by an act of Congress dated February 9, 1821. The next year the first building was completed and opened for use. During the Civil War the buildings of Columbian College were turned over to the national government, but classroom work continued. On March 3, 1873, the name of Columbian College was changed to Columbian University and in 1874 it was moved to 15th and H Streets, N. W. Before 1888 the college was for the exclusive education of men, but in that year the principle of coeducation was adopted. By act of Congress of January 23, 1904, the name of the institution was changed to The George Washington University and Columbian College proper lost some of its identity by being merged into the Department of Arts and Sciences. In 1912 the term Columbian College was again in general use, being applied to the College of Liberal Arts. On April 15 of that year the University moved to its present site. Since then Columbian College has had a rapid growth in enrollment, and its organization has been consolidated and systematized.

THE LAW SCHOOL

WILLIAM CABELL VAN VLECK
Dean

"We hail with much satisfaction the commencement of this important branch of education in this District, under circumstances so favorable to its success and public usefulness," wrote a reporter in the Daily National Intelligencer in giving an account of the very first Law Lecture of the Columbian College, which was delivered by Chief Judge William Cranch in the Court Room at the City Hall on June 13, 1826. From that date forward the Law School annals present a continuous record of achievement and service under the direction of a faculty which then as now, has included the names of men well known as teachers, law writers, judges, and lawyers.

The academic integrity of its teachers was diffused into the standards of the school. Always an advocate of high standards for admission, and for the improvement of legal education, the Law School became a charter member of the Association of American Law Schools when that association was organized in 1900. And, later, following closely the aims and requirements of the Council of Legal Education of the American Bar Association, the Law School enforced its rules and received its full approval.

The fine Law Library, which in volumes has increased twofold during the past ten years, occupies the entire fourth floor of Stockton Hall. There, the research and writing done by the professors in their respective fields, and the publication of The George Washington Law Review by both professors and students, are demonstrations of a brilliant future for Stockton Hall in the training of American lawyers.

THE SCHOOL OF ENGINEERING

The Corcoran School of Science and Arts, later known as the Corcoran Scientific School, was, in 1884, established as a part of Columbian University. Henry W. Blair was appointed the first Professor of Engineering. Four years later the first class of the Corcoran Scientific School, numbering six, was graduated. The graduates were Mr. E. H. Booth, of the United States Patent Office; Miss Elizabeth Brown (Mrs. A. P. Davis), a mathematician; Miss Louise Connolly; Mr. A. P. Davis, who became an internationally known reclamation engineer; Mr. E. P. Lewis, who became Professor of Physics at the University of California; and Mr. George Washington Littlehales, the only one now living, recently retired from the position of Hydrographic Engineer in the Hydrographic Office.

Hans Zopke was appointed the first Professor of Mechanical Engineering in 1895, and the first professor of Electrical Engineering was Frank A. Wolf. The name of the school was changed to the Washington College of Engineering, as a division of the Department of Arts and Sciences in 1906, with Dr. H. L. Hodgkins as Dean.

Student branches of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the American Society of Civil Engineers, and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers were organized, and Phi Theta Xi, Professional Engineering Fraternity, has its place in the school. For the past six years the engineers have been holding an annual banquet, and for four years an elaborate Engineers' Ball.

THE SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

The prime movers in organizing the Division of Education in 1907 were, on the side of the University, Mr. Williston S. Hough, Professor of Philosophy, and Mr. Charles W. Needham, President of the University. On the side of the Public Schools, Mr. Stephen E. Kramer, then an elementary school principal, took an active part. Mr. Kramer is now the First Assistant Superintendent of Schools of the District of Columbia and a member of the Board of Trustees of the University. Mr. Needham has retired from active life and is living in Washington, while Mr. Hough, then barely in middle life, passed to his reward in 1912.

The Division of Education continued under its original designation until 1909, when the title was changed to Teachers College. There were at that time few independent teachers colleges and the designation adapted was therefore appropriate. Since that time, however, the school for the education of teachers in a university has more generally come to be known as The School of Education, and in line with this movement, was adopted by The George Washington University in 1928.

Since its foundation in 1907, The School of Education has conferred approximately 1,000 bachelor's degrees, as well as many master's degrees and a few doctor's degrees. These graduates are teaching, or have taught, not only in the District of Columbia, and in the neighboring states of Maryland and Virginia, but in practically every other state in the Union, in our outlying possessions, and in foreign countries.

THE SCHOOL OF PHARMACY

The Columbia Pharmaceutical Association of the District of Columbia, composed of the leading Pharmacists of Georgetown and Washington, was organized in April, 1871, for the purpose of advancing the scientific and material interests in pharmacy. After careful consideration it was decided to found a school for instruction, and a charter was procured. The Association was disbanded and reorganized as The National School of Pharmacy, of Washington, D. C., which was opened on November 11, 1872. At the beginning of its first year, its classes were largely augmented by the transfer to it of the School of Pharmacy of the National Medical College of the Columbian University.

Dr. William S. Thompson served as the first president of the new college and was followed by many nationally prominent pharmacists, among them Dr. Henry E. Kalusowski, who was appointed Dean of the College of Pharmacy when it affiliated with The George Washington University. Upon Dr. Kalusowski's death in 1927, Dr. Louis F. Bradley was appointed Dean. The following year a complete reorganization was effected and the teaching staff increased to nineteen. In September, 1929, The School of Pharmacy moved into its present quarters. Through the generosity and interest of the local pharmacists, adequate funds were raised to purchase modern equipment for the new building. In 1931 Professor W. Paul Briggs was appointed Dean of the School of Pharmacy. The School holds membership in the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy.

THE SCHOOL OF GOVERNMENT

The George Washington University was one of the first institutions in the United States to organize the study of government and international relations. The "School of Comparative Jurisprudence and Diplomacy" was founded in 1898 to train men for diplomatic positions. The faculty consisted of Benaiah L. Whitman, president; Charles W. Needham, dean; John M. Harlan, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States; John W. Foster, ex-Secretary of State; David J. Brewer, Associate Justice of The Supreme Court of the United States; David J. Hill, Assistant Secretary of State; Lyman J. Gage, Secretary of the Treasury; J. L. M. Curry, sometime Minister to Spain; Willis Van Devanter, Assistant Attorney General; and Martin A. Knapp, Chairman, Interstate Commerce Commission.

The name of the school was changed to the "Department of Politics and Diplomacy" in 1905. From 1907 to 1913, it was known as the "College of the Political Sciences." Then the school was abolished and its work given in Columbian College. In 1907 the first undergraduate course was offered.

The present School of Government came into existence in 1928. At that time the Southern Jurisdiction of the Scottish Rite granted the School an endowment of one million dollars, permitting greater expansion in the preparation of men and women for governmental, diplomatic and private service.

THE DIVISION OF LIBRARY SCIENCE

Although it was not until 1928 that the Division of Library Science was established, courses were offered as early as 1919 in the Summer Sessions and continued for five successive years. The fundamentals of library work, classification and cataloguing, were in 1924 given in the regular college curriculum, and since that time the number of courses offered has steadily increased.

Distinguished librarians of the city aided in the seminar and pro-seminar work of the division. Dr. George F. Bowerman, Miss Elizabeth O. Cullen and Consultant Ernest Cushing Richardson were among those who lectured during that first year of the Division's existence. In 1929 Miss Elizabeth A. Lathrop was appointed Assistant Professor, introducing two new courses. Professor Lewis A. Alder of the United States Office of Education conducted a class in adult education. Dr. Alfred F. W. Schmidt, while on sabbatical leave in Europe in 1931, was relieved by Consultant Charles Martel and Curator Ernest Kletsch of the Library of Congress.

There have been 106 graduates from the Division, coming from 24 different states and the District of Columbia. Forty-seven of these are in regular library work, 16 in important library positions, 17 in the Civil Works Administration, 19 in clerical and stenographic positions, 6 unemployed, and 1 deceased. Five are listed in Who's Who in Library Science.

THE DIVISION OF FINE ARTS

In 1884 the catalogue of the Columbian University announced that provisions had been made for instruction in Architecture and Drawing, in all its branches, Harry King, LL.B., having been appointed Professor of Drawing and William M. Poindexter, Professor of Architecture. The Department of Architecture was created in 1892, prescribing in detail a complete four-year curriculum in Architecture. A School of Fine Arts was established in 1894, with William Ordway Partridge, Professor, and graduate work in Architecture was first offered at this time.

The faculty continued to grow, until in 1900 there were such eminent lecturers listed as: Bernard R. Green, Superintendent of the Library of Congress; Grunwald Aus, Chief Engineer, Office of the Supervising Architect of the Treasury; James C. Plant, Chief of Computing Division, Office of Supervising Architect of the Treasury; and George Risk, Civil Service Examiner.

In 1923 Norris Ingersoll Crandall was appointed Professor of Architecture, and Head of the Department. Under the general reorganization plan in 1928, the Division of Fine Arts came into existence. Professor Crandall was appointed Director of the Division of Fine Arts and in 1931 a five-year course in Architecture was instituted. Registration in the school has tripled itself in the past ten years.

THE DIVISION OF UNIVERSITY AND EXTENSION STUDENTS

ELMER LOUIS KAYSER
Director

While the Division of University and Extension Students was not organized until 1930, the interests which it aims to develop have, for a long period, been a major concern of The George Washington University. A half century ago, the University organized its work so as to make fully accessible to the mature student its facilities for cultural development and professional training. The development of the Division's activities is but a continuation and expansion of what has long been considered a prime responsibility of the University.

Through the Division of University Students, it is possible for the mature student to obtain instruction in fields for which he is properly prepared without reference to degree requirements. His continuance in the University is limited only by his ability to utilize the instruction offered and the University's ability to furnish the courses required. This may mean to the student the acquisition of added information and skill for the daily work. For those whose preparation has been interrupted or fragmentary, the Division provides guidance and advice to assist in the regularization of educational programs. As an extension unit, the Division provides for special groups such special training as they may desire, whenever adequate facilities can be found. The Division owes its existence to the University's desire to render the fullest educational service.

The Student Handbook contains general information regarding University activities. It is published and distributed without charge to the students at time of Fall registration. It is in a handy pocket size and serves as a reference book to both new students and upperclassmen.

For facility in finding the information desired, the Handbook staff, composed of seven students, has divided the contents into five sections, General Information, Student Activities, Freshman Information, Sports, and Organizations.

Introducing new students to the University, the Handbook carries a campus directory, historical outline of the institution, and calendar for the ensuing year. Requirements for awards, assemblies and calendar with respect to Freshmen, are stated, as are membership requirements of all campus organizations.

THE UNIVERSITY HATCHET

The University Hatchet is the University's weekly newspaper, published by the students for the students. It is a real newspaper—in appearance as well as in content.

The Hatchet offers the students two distinct services: It affords students an opportunity to do real newspaper work, and also serves as the official news organ of the University. Every student who registers receives the paper; in this way a student body of over 6,000, distributed among a number of different colleges and with residences covering a wide area, is kept accurately informed on matters of current interest in the University.

Last year the Hatchet was accorded distinguished recognition by the Intercollegiate Newspaper Association of the Middle Atlantic States.

THE CHERRY TREE

The CHERRY TREE is issued in the spring of each year. It is a graphic history of the University for the year; it is written and edited entirely by students.

The CHERRY TREE is more than the usual college yearbook. Its purpose is each year to depict in permanent form the University as the students have known it.

Campus scenes, photographs of officers of the University, pictures and names of members of social, honorary and professional fraternities and sororities and other organizations are carried in special divisions of the book. There is also a review of leading social and dramatic events of the year and a complete resumé of all sports in each edition of the CHERRY TREE.

Last year and in 1932 the CHERRY TREE was awarded high rating by the National Scholastic Press Association. This rating, based on results achieved with the facilities available, was surpassed by only three annuals in the country.

MEN'S DEBATE TEAM

The men's debate team opened an unusually successful season early in the fall, holding an International debate against an English team on the question "Resolved: That Nationalism is a menace to civilization." The affirmative of the question was supported by L. T. Kitchen of Kings College and F. L. Ralphs of Sheffield. The team of George Washington University, Seymour Mintz and Edgar Gerlick, upheld the negative.

During the regular spring debate season the squad devoted its time to a study of two questions, "Resolved: That Hitlerism is to the best interests of the German People." And "Resolved: That the American people should boycott German goods."

The first of these topics was the subject of debate with Washington and Lee University who were met twice, once with George Washington as host, and again at Washington and Lee. The men's team also met William and Mary at Williamsburg on this same subject. The German boycott issue was debated when the men met the team from Princeton University and the University of North Carolina. These two debates were held at The George Washington University.

WOMEN'S DEBATE TEAM

The women's debate team this year made a detailed study of the new deal and the National Industrial Recovery Act. They confined their debate to the single resolution "That the fundamental principles of the National Recovery Act should be made a permanent feature of the United States Government."

In the majority of the debates held, The George Washington University women attacked the National Industrial Recovery Act. The only debate in which the affirmative side was taken by George Washington was the Swarthmore debate held at Swarthmore. In debates held with Trinity College at Trinity, and with the University of Pittsburgh and William and Mary College to whom George Washington University was host, the negative was defended. Presiding at the debate with William and Mary College was former Governor Pollard of Virginia. For the most part the debates in which the women's teams have participated were not decision contests.

Members of the squad who debated were Clara Critchfield and Charlotte Dubin, members of the affirmative team, and Maxine Farley and Mary Jane Salmon who debated the negative of the question. Alternates for the teams were Alice Alpert, Toby Gerber, Ann Nelson and Anne Rosenthal.

The squad was coached during their successful season by Professor Harold F. Harding, a member of the faculty in the Department of Public Speaking.

PUBLIC SPEAKING AWARDS

DELTA SIGMA RHO AWARDS

Delta Sigma Rho, national honorary forensic fraternity, each year makes awards in the form of silver cups to the sorority and fraternity winning in inter-sorority and inter-fraternity debate competition.

In the 1933-34 contest the question debated in the sorority competition was "Resolved: That the recommendations of the committee on the Costs of Medical Care should be approved." Zeta Tau Alpha, represented by Mary Lee Watkins and Jean Kardell, won the cup.

Acacia Fraternity, represented by Theodore Pierson and James Haley, was the winner in the fraternity contest. The subject debated by the men was "Resolved: That the citizens of the District of Columbia should be given a right to vote in the national elections."

DAVIS PRIZES

The Davis prizes, founded by the Hon. Isaac Davis in 1847 are gold awards made every year to the three best speakers appearing in a contest for which all seniors are eligible. Winners in the 1932-33 contest were Richard Tilden, first, Elizabeth Reeves, second, and Seymour Mintz, third.

FRESHMAN ORATORICAL CONTEST

Sigma Delta Phi, national speech arts fraternity for women, annually sponsors a contest in which all freshmen, submitting suitable manuscripts, may participate. A silver trophy is awarded the winner. The first place in the 1932-33 contest was won by Marjorie Nelson. Alicia Mooney won second honors.

HOMECOMING BALL

Alumni and undergraduates joined en masse to make the second annual Homecoming Ball the most festive occasion the University has witnessed.

Held on December the second, it came as a climax to the George Washington-Kansas football game, which was included in the Homecoming week-end celebration.

The main ballroom of the Willard Hotel presented a gay appearance. Banners of the various social organizations on the campus adorned the balcony and boxes. An unusual feature of the decorations was provided by the leaves artistically arranged about the walls. Vari-colored dresses of the ladies present added to the occasion.

Harriet Atwell, who was chosen First Lady of the University by the students, was introduced to the dancers. She presented a silver loving cup to Sigma Chi, the fraternity judged as having the best decorated house for the Homecoming.

Omicron Delta Kappa honored seven outstanding men with membership in its organization. Wendell Bain, president of the fraternity, presided over the "tap service."

INTERFRATERNITY PLEDGE PROM

CHAMP CARTER
Chairman

Pledges stepped forth and Greek brothers were relegated to the background at the annual Interfraternity Pledge Prom given on the evening of December 9 in the beautiful West End Ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel.

Fraternity banners decked the walls. The music of Barnee and his Shoreham orchestra, in tune with the spirit of the affair, featured medleys of fraternity songs, and in playing the sweetheart songs, tried to interpret the "technique" of each organization. Bert Bagranoff, a former George Washington student, and star of several Troubadour productions, lent additional color to the affair with a splendid rendition of several favorites of the moment, finishing with the "Buff and Blue," which everyone joined in singing.

The Interfraternity Pledge Prom is a tradition now, though begun a comparatively short time ago. Each year the dance is sponsored and carried through all the details by the pledges exclusively, showing that the neophytes can stage quite a worthy affair of their own, without the aid of their older brothers-to-be. The Prom this year was headed by Champ Carter, the Social Chairman of the Council.

TERRY McADAMS

ENGINEERS' BALL

The Shoreham Hotel was the scene of much gaiety on the night of Friday, February 9, when the Engineers held their third annual ball in the west ballroom.

Members of the council served as a reception committee for the guests of honor: President and Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin; Provost and Mrs. William Allen Wilbur; Mr. George O. Sanford of the Reclamation Bureau and Mrs. Sanford; and Dean and Mrs. John R. Lapham. Other members of the engineering faculty also attended.

Unusual lighting in the ballroom added to the festive occasion, and the large banner of the engineers becomingly draped one end of the room.

The traditional Grand March which started at midnight was led by Clara Critchfield and Virginia Hawkins accompanied by Terry J. McAdams and James L. Johnson. The Meyer-Davis Orchestra conducted by David McWilliams furnished the music for the occasion.

As entertainment for the dancers, the Men's Glee Club sang the "Alma Mater" and for an encore "Old Man River."

INTERFRATERNITY PROM

FRANK BASTABLE
Chairman

When Greek met Greek at the Interfraternity Prom, the result was one of the most festive occasions on the social calendar. The annual affair was held in the Main Ballroom of the Willard Hotel on the night of Friday, March 16.

Duke Morris and his Penn State Orchestra furnished their characteristically "peppy" music.

Banners from the various fraternities decorated the boxes and colored lights shed a soft glow over the assembled dancers.

The dancing paused at midnight. Inez Ingham escorted by Gordon Sullivan, President of the Council, and Claire Atkins accompanied by Frank Bastable, Chairman of the Prom, led the dancers around the ballroom in the traditional Grand March.

Following the March, Gate and Key, Honorary Activities Fraternity, conducted its Annual Tapping Service inducting twelve men into the fraternity. Cups for scholarship and activities were awarded at this time.

The dance resumed its course until two.

WATKINS, SPAULDING, LAWRIE

PAN-HELLENIC PROM

Bringing to a fitting close the successful social season was the Pan-Hellenic Prom given on the twentieth of April, in the Grand Ballroom of the Willard Hotel.

All that could be desired in the way of music was furnished by Enoch Lite and his well-known orchestra. His slow music entertained the dancers until the wee small hours.

A bird's-eye view gave the impression of lovely colorful dresses radiating the spirit of spring along with the bright flowers and gay laughter. Flowered dresses seemed to be the most favored for the moment. Further ornamentation was added to the already attractively decorated ballroom by the sprinkling of thirteen sorority banners designating the box of each sorority.

During intermission Clara Critchfield, President of Pan-Hellenic Council, presented the Bridge Cup to the winner of the Inter-Sorority Bridge Tournament.

The committee for this highly successful dance was: Mary Lee Watkins, Chairman, Clementina Lawrie, and Edith Spaulding.

THE GENERAL ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

It is the earnest hope of the alumni officers that members of the Class of 1934 will maintain a close and lasting association with their Alma Mater, individually and through the alumni organizations. A continuing interest in the University should be a part of the heritage of every graduate, and the alumni organizations are the channels which give direction and expression to this interest.

REGIONAL ALUMNI CLUBS in cities throughout the country keep alive the spirit of the University among alumni who are remote. If you are leaving Washington to take up your work elsewhere, you should make contact with the George Washington University Alumni Club in the city where you locate.

PROFESSIONAL GROUPS—Law, Medicine, Education, Library Science—foster friendship, cooperation, and professional progress among graduates whose life work is in the same field.

THE GENERAL ALUMNI ASSOCIATION coordinates these various forces and promotes alumni objectives which are common to the University as a whole and to its entire alumni body.

MEMBERSHIP

Any practical Catholic student or teacher of the University eligible for membership. Honorary or associate membership open to former Catholic students in the University.

PURPOSE

To foster the spiritual, moral and intellectual welfare of the Catholics in the University by contact socially with other Catholic students and members of the Catholic clergy and laity. To explain the Catholic Church and its teaching to interested members of the University and aid thereby the understanding of the Church and its position in the world today.

The Newman Club in the academic year 1933-34 placed copies of the Catholic Magazines in the periodical rack of the University Library.

Under the direction of the Chaplain, the Rev. John K. Cartwright, the Catholic Action group of the Club constructed a chart showing graphically the plan of organization of the hierarchy of the Catholic Church and the Catholic organizations both lay and secular that are in existence throughout the world.

The George Washington University Luther Club, organized in 1931, has for its purpose the bringing into contact and fellowship of Lutheran students of the University. It is affiliated with the National Lutheran Student Association of Amerca.

The activities of the Luther Club for the past year have included several social events, one speaker meeting, two series of Sunday afternoon discussion groups, chapel exercises, and a gift of books to The George Washington University Library in commemoration of the 450th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther, and representation at the 15th Annual Conference of the North Atlantic Region of the Lutheran Student Association.

DRAMA APPRECIATION CLUB

The Drama Appreciation Club was organized three years ago to further interest in the drama through discussion, criticism and attendance at plays. In the spring of 1933, the club turned its attention to the production of one-act plays, believing that actual experience would give the members a better knowledge of the drama.

Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Theodore Tiller, and directed by Mrs. George Romney, founder of the club, a series of one-act plays has been presented. Some of these plays included: "Out of the Darkness," "Will o' the Wisp," "The Passing of Chow-Chow," "Hearts," "The First Dress-Suit," "Pearls," "Suppressed Desires," and "Trifles."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION

Founded in the fall of 1931 by a group of students of this University who were interested in Christian Science, this organization is one of forty-six such organizations located in universities and colleges throughout the world.

Meetings are held in Lambie House on the first and third Thursday evenings of the month during the school year. These meetings are conducted by a Reader who is elected by the membership.

Lectures on Christian Science are given on the campus by Christian Science lecturers who are members of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. A lecture was given in February by Judge Frederick C. Hill, C.S., of Los Angeles, California. To the meetings and lectures students and faculty members are invited. Authorized Christian Science literature is kept in the University Library.

"... business men and cultured scholars have found that Christian Science enhances their endurance and mental powers, enlarges their perception of character, gives them acuteness and comprehensiveness and an ability to exceed their ordinary capacity."—Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy.

Founded: February, 1931, at George Washington University

Flower: Gardenia

PURPOSE

PHI PI EPSILON, professional foreign service sorority, was founded at The George Washington University, February, 1931, for the purpose of creating and developing interest among the women of the University in the fields of foreign service and foreign commerce. Those eligible for membership must have completed sixty semester hours of credit with a 2.0 average, and must be interested in fields related to the subject of foreign affairs. This field is the last in which women have entered, and, therefore, Phi Pi Epsilon is a pioneer. Contacts have been made with people doing both field and domestic work in foreign service. Plans are being made for national expansion in the near future. Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, American minister to Denmark, is an honorary member of Phi Pi Epsilon.

JAMES E. PIXLEE
DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

Out of the west there came to George Washington a quiet, unassuming man named Pixlee and coincidental with the arrival of this personage was the rise of the University's athletic prestige in the sport's world. Plans were made and a new system adopted for the gradual growth of athletic development. Contact with the nation's leading schools was made and a new attention focused upon the local athletic activities. The success of the team against leading opposition has placed the University in a favored position among the schools ranking high on the sports calendar. The increased attendance at local football games is in itself a proof of the prominence into which Coach James E. Pixlee has forged his teams.

Previous to assuming his present position in 1929, Mr. Pixlee was located at Westminster College in Fulton, Missouri, where he had served for eight years as director of athletics and head coach of football, basketball, baseball, and tennis. His football teams at Westminster captured the Missouri state conference championships four times. His basketball teams were conference champions five times and undefeated during three seasons. "To play the game and always fight" is Pixlee's theory to his players. The fact that it is a good theory is proven by its success. The manner in which Mr. Pixlee has handled himself and his teams has brought favorable comment from not only local followings but from our friends and opponents at large.

THE COACHING STAFF

Max Farrington, assistant athletic director and coach of minor sports, has been Mr. Pixlee's personal aid in the athletic department since coming here in 1929.

A former All-American at the University of Minnesota, Len Walsh has given invaluable service as varsity line coach and as Coach Pixlee's chief lieutenant in gridiron battles.

Jean Sexton, freshman football coach, has gained more prominence each year with his outstanding cub elevens. He also supervises intra-mural sports.

Roland Logan, latest addition to the coaching staff, came here from the University of Kansas and in his first year gave outstanding service in football and as frosh basketball coach.

Ted O'Leary, also a product of the University of Kansas, completed his second year at the University as varsity basketball coach. With little experienced material he produced another strong team.

Bill Myers, backfield coach and instructor in Physical Education, came here in 1931 from Occidental College in California and has assisted Mr. Pixlee ably in the past three years.

Serving chiefly as scout and aide to Len Walsh, John Lee finished his second year at the University as successfully as he did the first. In 1929 he was All-Big Six tackle at Oklahoma University.

Jack Espey is a veteran Washington newspaperman, taking up his duties at the University in the summer of 1932.

BERNARD FAGELSON
Senior Manager

The managerial system instituted three years ago served as an efficient link between the athletic department and the student body again this year. The system, which places a senior manager in charge of all sports, a junior manager in charge of major sports and as the supervising head of minor sports, a sophomore manager in charge of each minor sport and freshman managers as assistants to both sophomore and junior managers, leaves no opportunity for advancement except through merit.

The senior manager is the directing head of the entire staff and in promotions makes his recommendations to the assistant athletic director, in cooperation with the coach of each sport.

Bernard Fagelson, who served as junior manager of football, was appointed senior manager of athletics for the 1933-34 season. Ray Coombes, Robert Hitch, Joe Danzansky and John Busick, who had all served as sophomore managers last year, were made junior managers of football, basketball, baseball and minor sports, respectively, for this year.

THE MANAGERIAL SYSTEM

The past season was the end of the first complete working of the new managerial system. Bernard Fagelson, who served four years ago as freshman manager of football, rose to the peak position of senior sports manager. The system was inaugurated in 1930 by Bill Hanback, who was the first man to hold the assignment of senior manager.

To the casual observer the manager is a combination water boy, errand runner, and white collared office employee. The casual observer is probably right. During weeks of training season the football managers carry heavy equipment around. At games they are "Johnny on the spot." Between games and out of season they do most anything.

If you happen to be interested in extra-curricula activity and you want no credit for what you accomplish and you don't mind working—be a manager.

JOE DANZANSKY

With the increasing crowds at George Washington's football games, the demand for efficiency and organization in cheering has been greater in the last two years than ever before. Jerry Sickler, the old faithful who had been doing business in front of average Buff and Blue crowds for years, wilted after a single season of action under the strain of coaxing cheers and whistles from the huge throngs that packed Griffith Stadium to see the powerful Colonial eleven in action.

Joe Danzansky stepped into Jerry's shoes and proceeded to do a workmanlike job with Lowell Bradford and Sammy Walker as assistants. For very special occasions, Sickler was persuaded to come out of retirement and these four, with three or four second assistants, produced a brand of cheering on a par with the football played.

The biggest addition to the football show, however, was the introduction of card designs used between the halves. These were conceived and directed by Ted Pierson and proved to be a fine innovation.

A special stand in the center section of the student seats was reserved for 420 students who were drilled by Pierson and a corps of aids in the movements needed to form the intricate displays.

At first the organization was ragged and the designs failed, but Pierson stuck to his job and turned out some perfect work after mid-season.

The designs formed consisted of a welcome or recognition of the visiting team, usually the first letter in the name of the school, or a figure of its mascot. High spots in design were reached by Pierson and his crew with the formation of the head of George Washington at the Tennessee game and the forming of a Jayhawk, symbol of the University of Kansas, when the latter played the Colonials here in the Homecoming game.

Danzansky and the cheer leaders worked with Pierson throughout and should also be commended.

WALKER, DANZANSKY, BRADFORD

FOOTBALL

Coach Jim Pixlee and his assistants again turned out a strong eleven to represent George Washington on the gridiron. The season's record of five victories, three losses and one tie game does not begin to properly value the strength of the '33 team, which played the hardest schedule any Buff and Blue squad has ever faced. The Colonials were easily the outstanding team in the Middle Atlantic section.

GEORGE WASHINGTON, 27; CATAWBA, 0

The Colonial gridmen formally opened their season with a decisive 27-0 win over Catawba's "Little Giants." In this, the first game, Pixlee utilized his entire squad trying to find a clicking combination.

During the first two periods the Catawbamen, led by "Little Caesar" Cesareo, kept the Colonials scoreless. Remarkable plunging by Bomba, 200-pound sophomore fullback, and brilliant punting and running by "Tuffy" Leemans began to tell in the second half when four tallies were registered against the fastly tiring enemy. The Carolinians were coached by Charlie Moran, leader of the famed Centre College eleven.

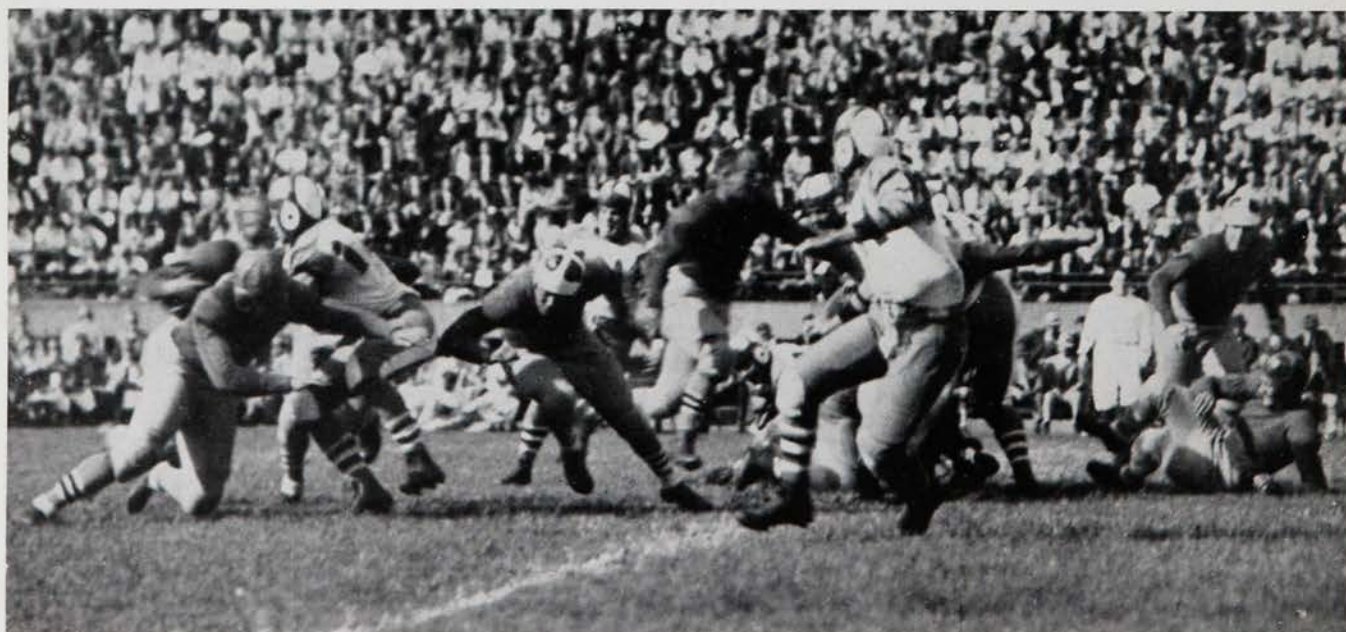

GEORGE WASHINGTON, 27; NORTH DAKOTA, 6

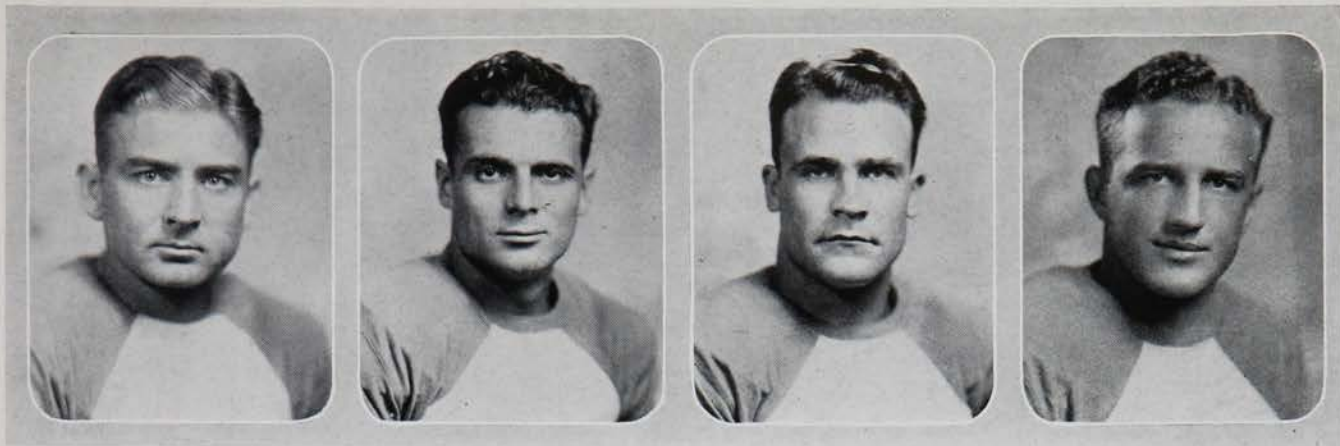

Coach Jim Pixlee piled his boys into an "iron horse" and hustled them off to Grand Forks, N. D., for their only out-of-town game. The highly touted Nodaks fell before a withering attack, 27-6.

After the first quarter the Colonials were distinctly superior and held the upper hand except for the waning minutes of the game when the North Dakota team picked up their lone tally. "Crash" Bomba stood as the Buff and Blue hero throughout the contest. The line was impressive.

Colonial fans heard a play by play broadcast of the game at home via a special wire to the George Washington gym.

GEORGE WASHINGTON, 19; AUBURN, 6

A clever field general, an unmovable forward wall, and a backfield of talented, hard-running performers banded together to give Coach Jim Pixlee all he needed in the way of an eleven to conquer the visiting Auburn team directed by Chet Wynne.

Before the contest was well under way the Dixie lads had registered their marker, and the stands moaned in despair as the Southerners plowed roughshod over the local youths. A blonde and rather handsome Texan youth took it upon himself to prove to the throng of Colonial ticket-holders that there was a Santa Claus. Johnny Baker, unquestionably one of the ablest signal-barkers that ever trampled a local grid, pulled the game out of the bag.

Baker forgot his managerial duties momentarily, and stepped into the shoes of our story book acquaintance, Frank Merriwell. With the goal line 45 yards away Johnny took the ball on a reverse from Bomba and sallied over for the tally that made Buff and Blue football history.

"Nig" McCarver joined the list of broken-nose warriors, as he reeled off yards in the Colonial attack. Coupled with the powerful Bomba, and with a flashy Tuffy Leemans running the other flank position—McCarver led in a varied series of plays that netted 286 yards.

JOHNNY BAKER Quarterback

Brainiest signal caller to trod the sod at Griffith Stadium in years. Never rattled in a pinch. Many times a life saver.

"NIG" McCARVER Halfback

Speed personified. Rose to heights against Auburn seldom equaled by any football player. Kept the crowds forever on edge.

HARDY PEARCE Tackle

Virtually impregnable at tackle. A cool, heady man who gave his best when the going was toughest.

DON BOMBA Fullback

The ideal type for fullback. Big, wiry, fast and a deadly tackler. His best day was against North Dakota and WHAT a day it was!

End

Seems to fit in any position on the team. Switched to a flank after a year at tackle. Yielded few yards around his end.

SIDNEY KOLKER

Tackle

Another "local boy makes good" case. Should win a regular post next season after seeing almost continuous service as a reserve.

GEORGE WASHINGTON, 0; CLEMSON, 0

Showing lack of experience but a fighting heart the George Washington eleven was unable to garner the necessary punch and the Clemson College team was held, 0-0. Nine of Pixlee's best men were benched.

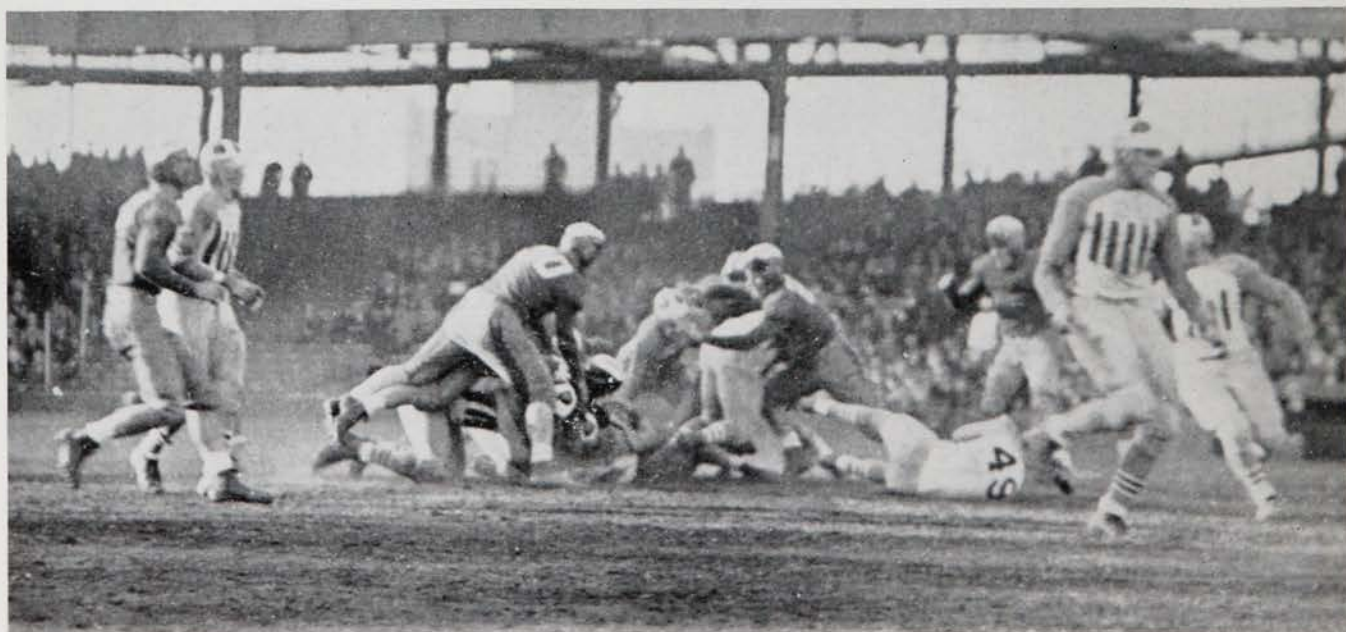

In the first minutes George Washington advanced to the $2\frac{1}{2}$ -yard line, only to be repulsed. "Tuffy" Leemans, however, played sensationally, and with brilliant runs gained a total of 139 yards in 30 tries, an average of $4\frac{1}{2}$ yards a try. During the last quarter Clemson kept the Colonials on the defensive, driving to G. W.'s 2-yard line and there to be stopped by the desperate last minute struggle of the Buff and Blue.

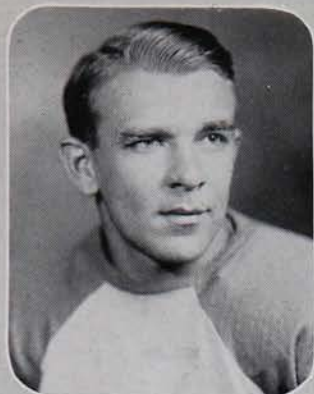

GEORGE WASHINGTON, 33; WEST VIRGINIA WESLEYAN, 0

In meeting the Bobcats of West Virginia Wesleyan the Colonials met and conquered, 33-0, a team with a reputation of sterling performances against opponents reputed to be of far greater strength. The visitors seemed powerless before the slashing running and smooth interference of the Buff and Blue aggregation.

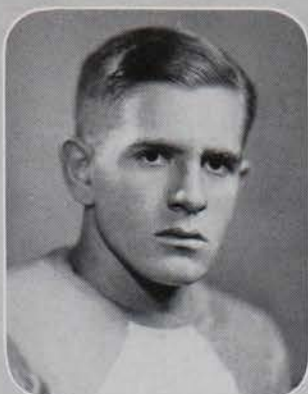

Leemans began the scoring when he returned the kick-off for a tally. Shortly afterwards he duplicated with a 71-yard run. Baker and Doose performed creditably in the backfield. Hall starred for the Bobcats in a remarkably versatile defensive and offensive role.

TENNESSEE, 13; GEORGE WASHINGTON, 0

With a lineup noticeably void of the names of several stellar performers the Colonials entered the Vol fray the underdogs. Beattie Feathers, ace triple-threatener from the South, took some of the sting of defeat from the air. It was a privilege to watch him kick, pass, and run in truly all-American style, but we couldn't forget the three chaps on the bench, who, because of ineligibility, were deprived of their right to aid in the struggle.

McCarver, Baker and Pearce sat motionless on the sidelines as the visiting aggregation romped over the Colonials, giving them only one real chance to score, and that one they were unable to accept. Finis Parrish played an excellent game for the Buff and Blue, but his efforts went in vain when the powerful, clever Dixie eleven marched on to victory.

Nearly twenty-five thousand fans roared in delight as the Colonial team cast aside the handicap of competing with their mainstays out of the lineup and kept the first period an all-G. W. affair. In the opening canto the Colonials withstood the Vol attack, allowing no first downs and prevented the visiting gridmen from entering within seventy yards of the goal line. This couldn't last long!

The second period was a different story. A pass, a 20-yard punt return, and a dandy off-tackle sweep led to the Vol scoring fiasco.

HOLLIS HARRISON

Guard

"Country Boy" came up from the frosh last fall and proved his merit whenever called on. Best years are ahead of him.

BEN PLOTNICKI

Quarterback

Took over the reins of directing the team late in the season, and though inexperienced, came along fast as the campaign closed.

"TUFFY" LEEMANS

Halfback

Greatest soph back ever to wear the Buff and Blue. A "natural" if there ever was one. Headed for even bigger things.

HENRY STRAYER

Guard

Another successful Pixlee transfer. Moved from the backfield and slated to fill Hickman's shoes next season. A dependable man.

GEORGE WASHINGTON, 13; WASHINGTON & JEFFERSON, 6

Undaunted by the loss to Tennessee, the Colonial eleven came back fighting to get in the winning column the next week and set back a deceptive Washington and Jefferson team, 13-6. Striking out early in the game, G. W. scored when Bill Parrish intercepted an alien pass deep in Colonial territory and raced 70 yards for a touchdown as 8,000 fans roared in approval.

In the second quarter Ben Plotnicki got away for two long runs which put the ball on the 5-yard stripe and Bomba crashed over for the tally. W. & J. was held in check until the second half when a daring passing attack netted their only score.

TULSA, 13; GEORGE WASHINGTON, 6

Tulsa's Golden Hurricane faced G. W. for the fourth year and returned victorious for the fourth straight time. The same power coupled with the most unusual "spread" plays ever used here combined again to defeat the Colonials. A powerful Tulsa line, of which Bill Vokok, 220-pound All-American guard, was the main bulwark, repulsed the Colonial backs except in the last quarter when Finis Parrish sliced through tackle 35 yards for a touchdown.

Tack Dennis, plunging fullback, and Skeeter Beery, dashing half, contrived to pile up most of the 230 yards the Tulsans gained from scrimmage. Each scored a touchdown.

MORRISON

KANSAS, 7; GEORGE WASHINGTON, 0

The finale to George Washington's ambitious 1933 football schedule was sounded when the Jayhawkers of Kansas University defeated the Colonials, 7-0. The game was a climax to the second annual Homecoming Celebration.

During the first quarter play was on even terms, but in the second period the Jayhawkers were clearly superior. Twice they threatened the Colonial goal. Once when they were repulsed they attempted a field goal, which was partially blocked. In the third quarter Hafford, Kansas back, intercepted Leeman's pass, which was intended for Bill Parrish, and returned the oval 40 yards for the only and deciding score of the game.

George Washington came back strong in the last quarter, but was unable to score. Wray advanced the ball on an end-around play 17 yards into opposition territory. After being thrown for a loss, Plotnicki hurled a beautiful pass to Finis Parrish which netted 12 yards. Further efforts failed and the Colonials lost the ball on the ten-yard line.

Remarkable kicking by Tuffy Leemans was a highlight of the game. Sklar, guard, Mehninger, tackle, and Black, back, performed nobly for the visitors.

HARLEY VOLKMAN

Tackle

A hard working boy who delivered the goods when called on. Particularly adept on the defense, he may develop into a fine player with experience.

ARNOLD BENEFIELD

End

Another of the sophs to stand out in his first year. A hard working, spirited player whose true value was realized by the coach alone.

WAYNE DAVENPORT

Halfback

Suffered from injuries practically all season. A driving back who pushed the regulars hard continually. A valuable reserve.

JACK MORRISON

Guard

With Strayer formed a valued pair of reserves for Stewart and Hickman. Used often. Expected to hold regular job next season.

JEAN SEXTON
Coach

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

Woe is the life of a frosh gridman at the George Washington University! From early September to early December they plug—day in and day out—week in and week out—hours of scrimmage—the only time they are even so fortunate as to break into the news is when they are suffering from some unfortunate grid accident.

But lest you get the impression that the life of a yearling is a monotonous one we hasten to explain that these lads have a new assignment every week. On Friday they may be running the reverses and double laterals of Clemson and on Monday they will be hustling through a preliminary routine of Auburn's clever offensive. These freshmen played no games! Their competition was Coach Jim Pixlee's powerful varsity! The varsity's victories were their victories.

What does all this mean? It means simply that Coach Jean Sexton's frosh proteges spend the entire 12 or 13 week season in learning the attack and defense of the varsity opponents and daily they scrimmage against the varsity using the tactics of their future adversaries.

Coach Sexton and Assistant Coach Slaird put the plebes through their tasks every day. The coaches train them in new defense methods, aid them in developing their latent talents, and train them in muscular coordination. This active training produced definite "stars" among the first year men. Players that could readily be developed into varsity material. Outstanding among the men of the class of '37 were Tubby Ross and Frank Lee, tackles; Dave Parrack, guard; and four stellar backfield performers in Reeves, Brewer, Kavalier, and McGibbony.

Continually jovial, always willing to give freely of his time and energy for his friends. An epithet to Jean Sexton, frosh football coach. Jean is one of those men that abides by the philosophy "sympathetic understanding and kindly advice accomplish more than crude discipline and childlike scoldings." The men on his teams and the students in his classes are always willing to join in a testimonial to him their friend. An attestation to the value of modern teaching and coaching philosophy.

JIMMY HOWELL
Forward

George Washington faced an exceedingly lean year in basketball at the outset with Jimmy Howell the only veteran returning from the previous season. However, Coach Ted O'Leary turned out a fast quint which lacked experience and adequate reserve material, but still managed to win 11 out of 15 games.

In the last game of the season the Colonials defeated Washington and Lee, who later went on to win the Southern Conference championship.

BILL NOONAN

Center

The most improved player on the G. W. squad. Got the tap generally and was second in scoring for the season.

DALLAS SHIRLEY

Guard

A cool, heady player who steadied his mates when the going was rough. A natural guard, Dal usually moved up to score his share of points.

JIMMY SMITH

Forward

This young Missouri lad grabbed a regular post in his first varsity season and clung to it tightly all during the campaign.

BARNEY KANE

Forward

Another home town boy who should be at his best after a season's experience. Slight of build but a scrapper is Kane.

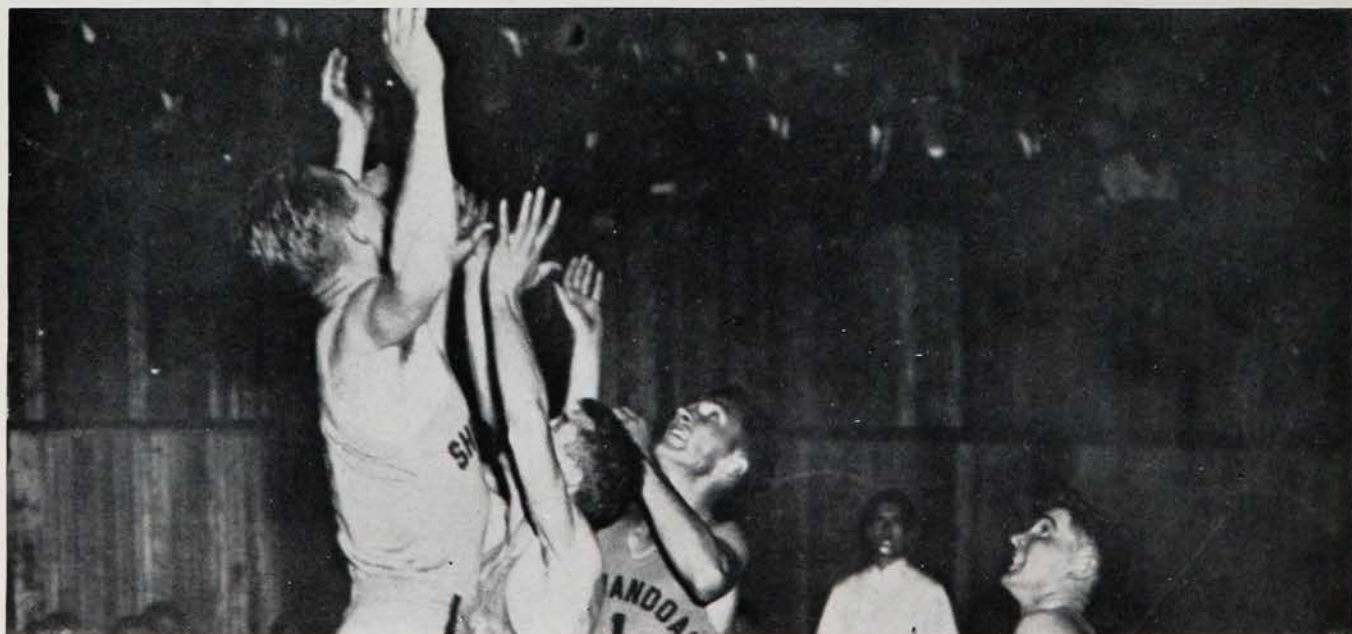

After three weeks of intensive training Coach O'Leary's basketball squad was narrowed down to a squad of 12 men, and George Washington backers looked forward to the 15-game schedule rather skeptically. With Howell the only veteran on hand, O'Leary was forced to mould his team from sophs and several squad members from the previous season who had little experience under fire.

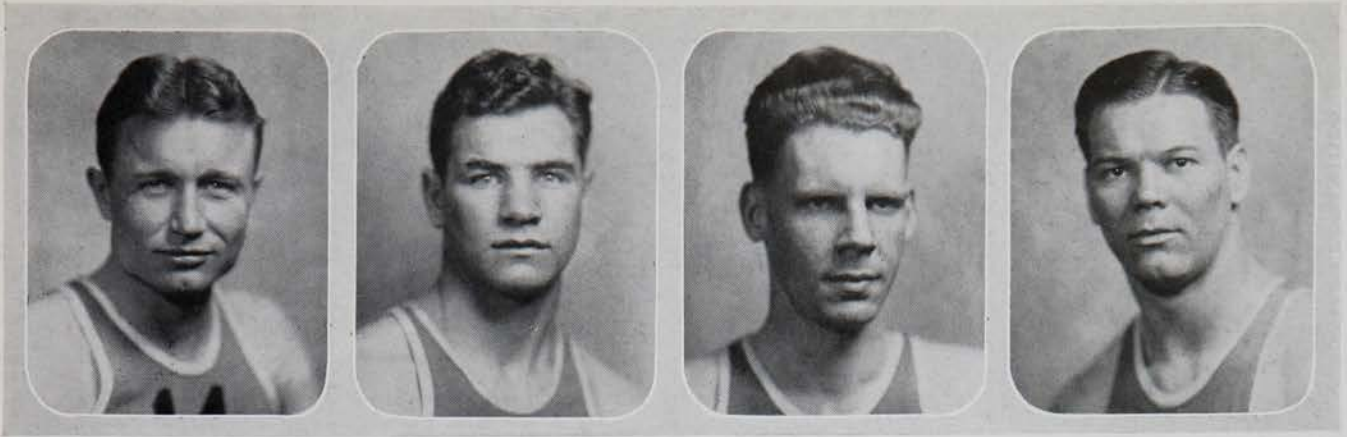

The starting line-up for the season's opener with Shenandoah contained Howell and Kane at forwards, Noonan at center, and Shirley and Stein, guards. Three of these men, Howell, Noonan and Shirley played the entire season as regulars, but Jimmy Smith, sprightly young soph from Missouri, came forward with a rush shortly after the season started and won Kane's regular position, although the latter saw action aplenty as a substitute.

Stein was injured seriously before the season was well under way, and just when he appeared to be in shape again, was declared scholastically ineligible February 1. His place was filled by Bill Parrish, who shared the position with Tuffy Leemans as the season wore on.

After four rather easily won games from Shenandoah, Baltimore, Geneva, and Furman were put behind them, the Colonials reached the "stretch" of their season with a trip to New York, where they met the strong City College of New York five. The latter, usually one of the leading Eastern teams, was even more potent than the year before and set George Washington down easily, 51-25.

Temple was the team's next opponent, being met in Philadelphia, but they too proved a trifle fast for the Buff and Blue, defeating the latter, 49-22. Howell and his mates led for the first ten minutes, but the Quaker City outfit soon got its bearings and drew safely ahead.

A 33-25 triumph over Wake Forest, the first game the latter had lost in their own gym in three years, put O'Leary's team back in the win column, but it was not destined to remain there long. Another New York trip on which Long Island and St. Johns of Brooklyn downed the Colonials, made signs of a winning season few.

The St. Johns game, though, was a heartbreaker, the Johnnies winning in the last second of play, 32-30, after George Washington held an 18-12 advantage at half time.

After this splurge of traveling, the team settled down at home for the rest of the season and scored six successive victories. Virginia Tech, Wake Forest, and Elon were turned back with comparative ease, while Western Maryland, Davis-Elkins and Washington and Lee were barely nosed out.

Coming back with this splendid home stand showed the team's stamina and closed another successful court campaign for George Washington.

"OZZIE" WRAY

Center

Employed an unorthodox shooting style. Pushed the other centers hard all season. Good man to have around.

"TUFFY" LEEMANS

Guard

As natural on the court as he was on the gridiron. Came along fast as the season ended to win a regular post.

HENRY RULEY

Center

Gave Noonan the competition he needed to go at full speed all season. Improved fast and may be a starter next year.

BILL PARRISH

Guard

Filled Stein's shoes capably after mid-season. A hard player who never gave the opposition a minute's rest.

Noonan drops in a snow-bird.

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL

George Washington's freshman basketball team was the best to represent the University in five years, winning 16 out of 18 games and establishing itself as one of the outstanding teams in Washington.

Coached by Roland Logan, the frosh quint had speed, dead-eyed forwards and a dogged defense that gave the opposition little chance to get its attack under way. Only Eastern High, scholastic champions, proved superior to the cubs, beating them twice by the narrowest of margins. In the first game with Eastern, the frosh led most of the way, but were never able to draw far in front of the Lincoln Park boys. Going into the last few minutes of play, which were the wildest and most exciting ever seen in the G. W. gym, the lead see-sawed back and forth. Finally Bassin tossed in a basket from center as the game ended to give Eastern the victory, 34-33.

The cubs vanquished all of the other local high schools twice, with the exception of Western, who fell before the frosh, 32-20, in the only encounter between the teams. Central came nearest to defeating the freshmen, wilting under a slashing last-minute attack which put the cubs ahead, 28-25.

Emerson was the only prep school to offer the team much resistance. In the last game of the season they succumbed, 29-28.

Consistently high scorers for the frosh were Everett Russell and "Slim" Whitely, forwards, who proved a menace to opposing guards all season. Goldfaden, forward, Cannefax, center, Forst, Berg and Yarbrough, guards, were the other men who saw most action as regulars.

VARSITY BASEBALL

After an absence of nearly ten years from participation in baseball, George Washington returned to the diamond last spring with a varsity team. It was sponsored jointly by the University and the National Capital Civic Fund, and coached by Ed Morris.

Handicapped by the lack of seasoned material and the usual troubles that visit the coach of any sport in its first season, Morris turned out a nine that won half of its games and succeeded in arousing interest in college baseball in Washington. Morris was also faced with the task of acclimating his squad to night baseball, a job which cannot be done in a short college season.

The Colonial nine played Delaware University in its first game and was soundly trounced, 12-2. On the following night, however, Morris' outfit gained sweet revenge by socking three Delaware pitchers to the far reaches of Griffith Stadium and winning, 15-4. Heinie Weingartner held the visitors to four hits, exhibiting some of the best pitching that Coach Morris could get out of his small staff all season.

After that start, the Colonials met tougher opposition and were defeated by Wake Forest, West Virginia and Western Maryland. Sandwiched in between these losses, however, were hard-earned victories over Mount St. Mary's, Salem, and, on the last night of the season, a much-cherished triumph over the Marines, which gave the team an even break for the season, with four victories and four defeats.

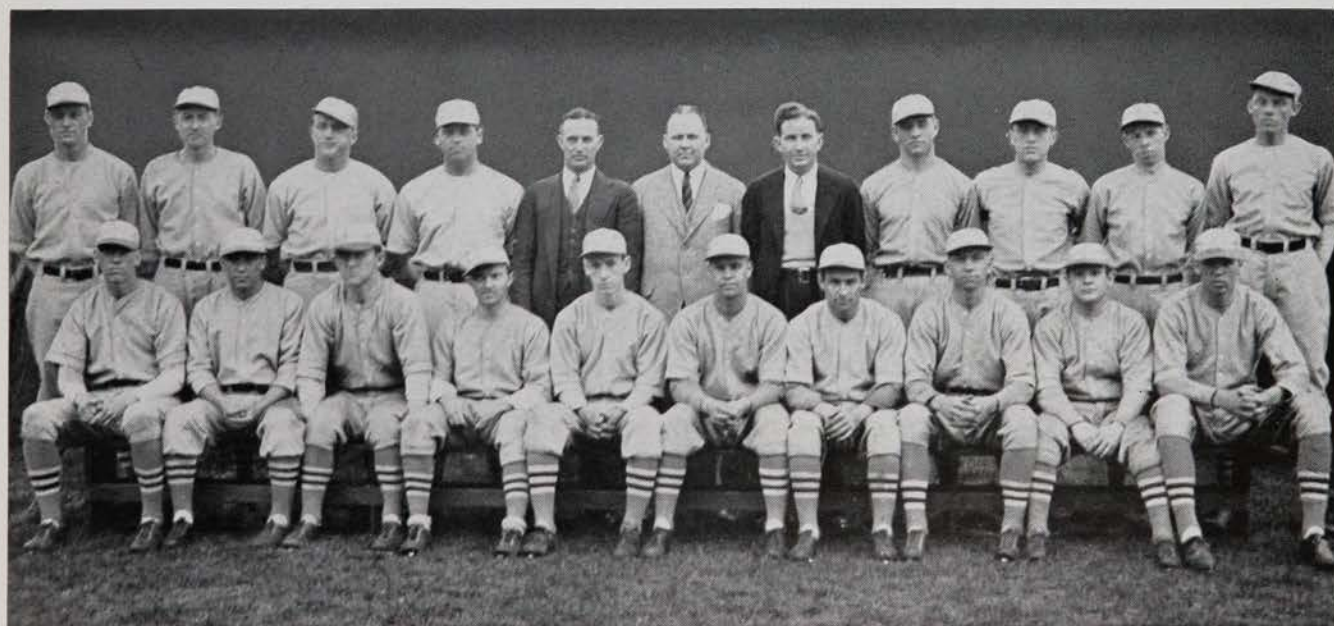

A program of interesting features which included the playground track championships and a baseball field day were held before some of the games.

FRANK PARSONS
Coach

Frank T. Parsons, Jr., rifle mentor since 1928, member World's Championship Rifle Team in 1930, and National Individual Free Rifle Champion in 1933, has proved again that he cannot only shoot, but can impart the technique to his students. This skill, ascertained by his success at turning out Colonial championship teams, has brought honors to George Washington riflemen and established a national reputation for Parsons as a crack rifle coach. His crafty sharpshooting instructions have brought results and praises.

VARSITY

Five Buff and Blue sharpshooters, all lettermen of the foregoing year, inaugurated the Colonial rifle season when in November they entered the National Individual Prone Matches. Later, in January, the same five riflers participated in the National Intercollegiate Individual Match, which was shot under strict N. R. A. regulations. Two strings of ten shots each, with one shot a minute, on prone, kneeling, and standing positions were allowed.

The Colonials, shooting their initial telegraphic and shoulder-to-shoulder engagements, easily outpointed Johns Hopkins by eighty-six points, and defeated V. M. I. at Lexington.

Maryland and Iowa Universities were the first contestants to frustrate the G. W. Musketeers. But the Buff and Blue gained their equilibrium the next week, and V. M. I., Maryland, and V. P. I. all fell from the Colonial's display of wrath. Pittsburgh and Cincinnati Universities likewise succumbed to the local shooters' onslaught when they fired against the Buff and Blue in challenge matches. G. W.'s score that resulted from the Maryland shoulder-to-shoulder fray was used in the two challenge matches.

Again evincing their characteristic poise while under fire, the Colonials brought their brilliant season to a close when they shot against Georgetown, The United States Naval Academy, at Annapolis, and entered the sectional matches for the National Intercollegiate Championship Match fired at Annapolis on the Midshipmen's range.

Coach Frank T. Parsons, Jr., depending on six lettermen of last year as the backbone of his '34 squad, moulded into shape an aggregation of sharpshooters that has brought honor to George Washington University. The results from both team and individual shoots in which Captain Frank P. Marano, Manager James G. Cross, Jr., Richard H. Free, Manuel P. Landman, Oscar T. Neal, and Walter T. Schmidt have engaged have won national recognition for the University. Every one has fired shoulder-to-shoulder with the nation's best sharpshooters, and every one has held his ground against most difficult opposition.

Displaying practically equal skill as that of the '33 varsity musketeers, Charles A. Fletcher, Robert J. Martin, F. W. Turnbull, and F. W. Hornbrook, Jr., afforded the Colonials sufficient reserve strength to fire against the country's most experienced nimrods. Coach Parsons with his six strong lettermen of last year and his four reserve crack shots had material out of which he had little difficulty in making two teams of equal firing strength.

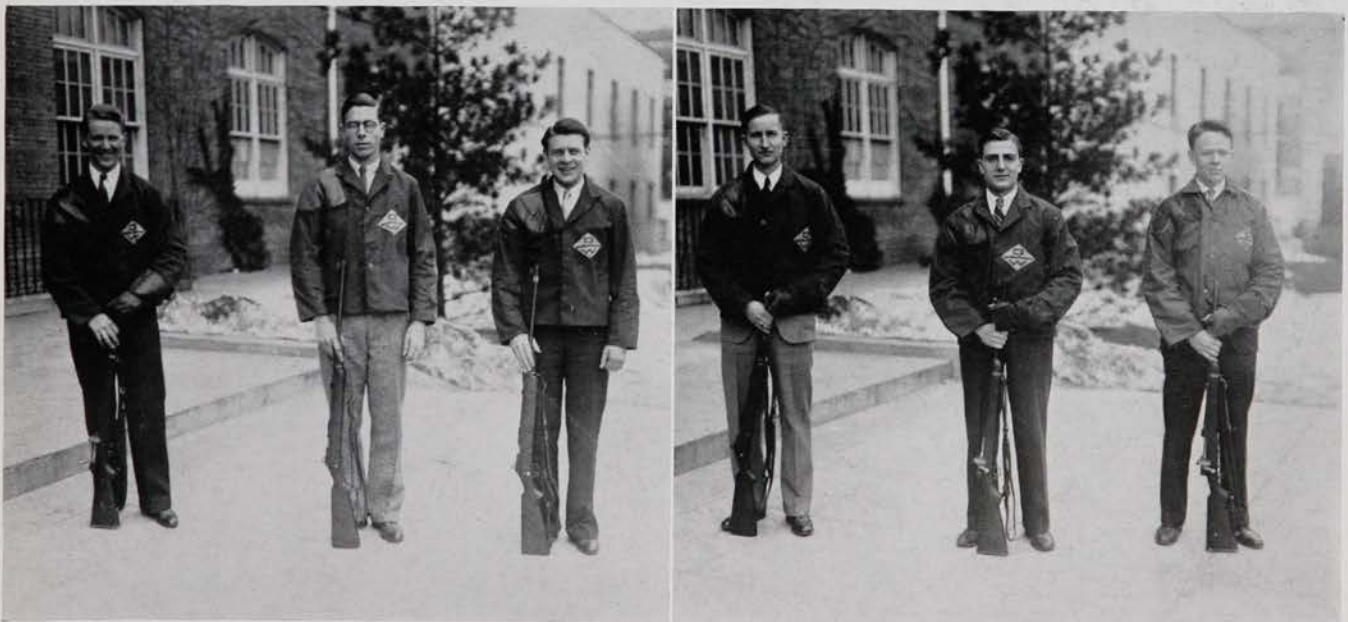

Coach Parsons had in Captain Frank Marano and Manager James Cross, Jr., two sincere, hard-working assistants that cooperated with him, and out of which developed a triumphant trio that brought results. Captain Marano, manager last year, has shown generalship in every encounter, while Manager Cross has again placed G. W. in the sport spotlight in scheduling notable teams to fire against the Buff and Blue. Both men, ending three years of shooting experience, have personified a real Colonial rifleman.

TENNIS

Although participating in an abbreviated schedule, the Colonial tennis team proved its merit in winning four of the five contests engaged in last spring. Nine matches were originally listed for the net squad, but rain caused three to be postponed while the fourth was cancelled.

Outstanding among the victories was that over the University of Pittsburgh team in the Smoky City. The Buff and Blue racketeers, led by Randy Robinson and Clyde Smith, came from behind to overcome an early Pitt advantage and triumph, 5-3. This was the first time a George Washington tennis team had beaten Pitt in recent years and the victory was a highly prized one.

Hard-fought victories were earned over Washington and Jefferson and Delaware University racketeers here, following the Pitt conquest. Both these teams extended the Colonials to the fullest, getting the advantage in doubles but always falling before the superior singles play of George Washington.

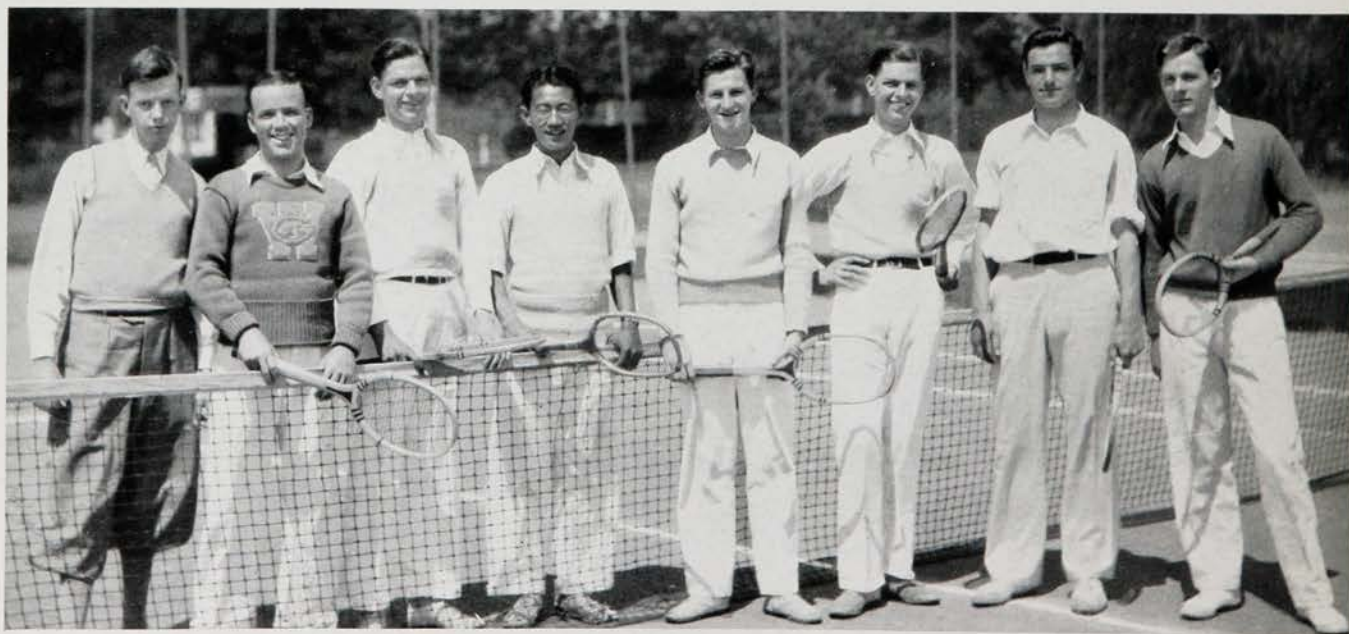

The score of both matches was 5-4.

Johns Hopkins, meeting the Buff and Blue squad in its opening match exhibited superior training and practice to easily down the Capital City racketeers, 7-2. Another Maryland outfit, St. John's of Annapolis, fell before G. W.'s power, 8-1.

Ray Sherfy, Lawrence Sherfy, Randy Robinson, Clyde Smith, Teddy Pierce and Reuben Moore composed the regular team, while Ken Murayama served as alternate.

SWIMMING

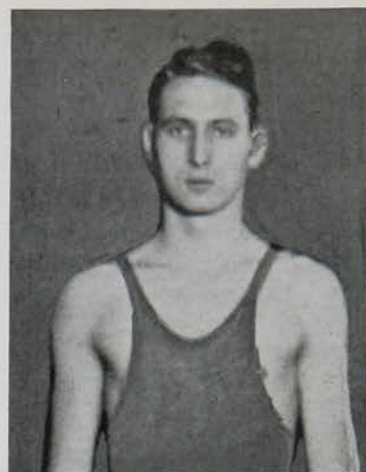

Losing only one man from last year's District A. A. U. title-winning team, Coach Al Lyman faced the year with fine prospects for an outstanding swimming team. Matches with seven strong tank teams were arranged and a squad of 30 natators began practice early in October to prepare for the campaign.

The season opened with the University of Virginia and Lyman's charges avenged a defeat of the previous year by trimming the Cavaliers, 34-32. Then followed victories over Lehigh and Swarthmore by decisive margins. In these three meets the swimming of Captain Max Rote and Dyer Ghormley was easily outstanding for George Washington. Each participated in three events.

After winning three meets in succession, the Buff and Blue tankers dropped three in a row to finish the season with an even break. Lafayette, Johns Hopkins and Delaware were all a trifle too fast for Rote and his mates, though the latter went down by close margins.

The swimming of Rote and Ghormley was the brightest spot of the local tank season. Rote was undefeated in the dash events in a dual meet, while Ghormley not only went undefeated in the breaststroke, but set a new pool record for the Knights of Columbus tank in Baltimore and broke his own record at the Ambassador Hotel pool here. Had George Washington been able to support these fine swimmers in other events, its record would not have been marred by defeat.

In the Eastern championships, the Colonials finished sixth, with Rote's second place in the 100-yard dash as close as G. W. could get to victory.

IN its second year of existence, the University Band under the direction of Louis Malkus attained unusual success as an added attraction at the football games. A fine band always seems to be a necessary part of the features that go to make football games colorful and attractive. Malkus' boys, well drilled and equally well versed in the art of horn tooting, drum beating, etc., more than filled the bill in this requirement and with the unusual designs formed by Ted Pierson's ably-directed crew, gave Washington's football minded something to occupy themselves with between the halves.

In this interim, Malkus led his men onto the field, saluted the visiting stands, and formed a spread figure with his men representing the first letter or letters in the visiting school's name. The song of the invaders was then played in appropriate gesture of welcome.

The band followed this with a forming of a "G. W. U." design and the playing of the Alma Mater. Malkus' men formed these designs in a military fashion which showed good training. As a whole the band was much improved over its first year and deserves high praise.

The intramural program at G. W. was again directed by Jean Sexton and enjoyed a fine season. Unusual interest was manifested by students in all of the activities and a larger number competed than ever before.

WINNERS OF INTRAMURAL TOURNAMENTS

Tennis—Winner, Don Garber; runner-up, Frank Rollins.

Doubles—Winners, Frank Rollins and Tom Banes; runners-up, Don Garber and Jack Olverson.

Golf—Winner, C. F. Kolb; runner-up, Lawrence Sherfy.

Horseshoes—Winner, Tom Christianson; runner-up, Dave Miller.

Intramural Baseball—Winning team, Engineering School and Junior College tied for first place.

A new athletic activity was started in the student body when the Squared Circle, a boxing club, was organized. Harry Kleiman, a Medical School student and former intercollegiate boxing champion, was responsible for the organization of the club and with Max Jeweler, acted as coach.

All students interested in boxing were invited to attend practice sessions of the club and about 60 students responded to Kleiman's call. Throughout the winter drills were held and at the end of the season, a series of exhibitions was held at the Y. M. C. A.

RUTH ATWELL

INSTRUCTORS

Miss Ruth Atwell, executive officer of the Physical Education Department for Women, was formerly director of Physical Education at Stanford University, Denison University, and Hollins College. She received her A.B. from Denison University, her certificate of graduation from the Graduate Department of Physical Education and Hygiene, Wellesley College, and her M.A. degree from George Washington University. She is co-director of the Mountain Lake Camp for Girls.

Miss Agnes Rogers received her A.B. degree from Smith College, continuing her studies at the Boston School of Physical Education, and at the University of Wisconsin, where she earned her M.A. degree. Playing on the Southeast Hockey team this year, she won a place on the All-American team for the second time. She is also chairman of the Umpiring Committee of Washington, and treasurer of the Physical Education Association of the District of Columbia, women's division.

Miss Helen Lawrence is a graduate of the New Haven Normal School of Gymnastics, and received her B.S. at George Washington University. She has studied also at Roanoke College, and at Columbia University, besides specializing in therapeutics in New York City. She has been Health Education Secretary of the Y. W. C. A. in Savannah, Georgia, and in Roanoke, Virginia. At present she is national judge and chairman of the District Basketball Rating Committee and co-director of the Mountain Lake Camp for Girls.

Mrs. Ruth Aubeck Foster, after graduating from the Central School of Physical Education and Hygiene, obtained her B.S. degree at Columbia University. She later studied dancing at the Bird-Larsen studio in New York, the Denishawn School of Dancing in Washington, and in New York under Gertrude Prokosh. She was formerly instructor of Physical Education at Randolph-Macon Women's College, and at the University of Pittsburgh. At present, she is president of the Physical Education Association of the District of Columbia, women's division.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

The Women's Athletic Association, largest undergraduate women's organization, is the culmination of women's sports in the George Washington University. All major and minor sports, intramural sports and the various recreational clubs are directed by this body. Any woman registered in the university who participates in athletics to the extent of making a class team or who is elected to the managership of a sport offered by the Physical Education Department is eligible for membership. Membership in the association is sometimes granted by special vote of the Executive Board.

At a meeting early in the school term, the association formulates its policies for the coming year. These aims, along with those of the National Athletic Federation for College Women, become the responsibility of the association under the guidance of the Executive Board.

The W. A. A. board is composed of the officers, class representatives, Hatchet representatives, manager of Intramurals, and the sports managers. This group formulates and executes the organization and functioning of the various sports. The director of Physical Education for Women and her staff of instructors act in the capacity of advisors to the board.

The officers of the Executive Board this year were: Gretchen Feiker, president; Louise Cox, vice-president; Henrietta Hobson, secretary; Isabell Elms, corresponding secretary; Mary Lee Watkins, treasurer; Catherine Crane, publicity manager; Rhoda Blose, Hatchet representative and assistant secretary; Annabelle McCullough, social chairman; Edith Spaulding, ways and means chairman and Intramural manager;

Miriam Casteel, senior representative; Frances Thompson, junior representative; Marjorie Sehorn, sophomore representative; Antoinette Fletcher, freshman representative.

The fact that the women's sports managerial system, introduced at the University last year, has met with success is evidenced by the increased number of women participating in athletics. Each major and minor sport is under the direction of a student manager elected by a majority vote of the participants in that sport the previous season. The applicant seeking a managership must first be approved by the Executive Board.

Sports managers for 1933-34 were: Florence Hedges, hockey; Annabelle McCullough, soccer; Catherine Crane, basketball; Mildred Loveless, volleyball; Martha Myers, replaced by Hortense Gifford, tennis; Virginia Pope, golf; Mary Brooks Haley, baseball; Helen Bunten, archery; Nancy Booth, swimming; Naomi Myers, rifle; and Virginia McDonnell, riding. Each sport manager is assisted by four class managers. General sport managers who work in cooperation with the managers of all sports are elected by the members of each class.

The Women's Athletic Association sponsored three formal banquets this year, one at the close of each sports season. Major and minor letters, numerals, cups, and plaques were awarded on these occasions. A freshman party, rummage sales, benefit bridge, Sports Days with Hood and Goucher Colleges were included in the W. A. A. program. A delegate was sent to the National Women's Athletic Association's convention, which was held this spring in North Carolina.

SOCCER

Soccer, ably coached by Miss Helen Lawrence and managed by Annabelle McCullough, enjoyed a very successful season this past year. A total of 137 players came out for the sport and from these the class teams and odd-even teams were picked.

At the annual Sports Day with Hood and Goucher colleges, held in Frederick, October 28, the two soccer teams representing George Washington University defeated Hood 4-0 and 2-0.

The honorary varsity team picked by Miss Lawrence, Annabelle McCullough, and the class managers, Miriam Casteel, Alicia Mooney, Carolina Mc-

McCULLOUGH

Millan, and Eleanor Lyle, were presented with major letters at the annual Women's Athletic Association fall banquet. The team consisted of Annabelle McCullough, Louise Thomas, Janet Stultz, Jane Harrison, Alicia Mooney, Edith Grosvenor, Frances Thompson, Reba Barton, Mary Louise Yauch, Miriam Casteel, and Virginia Pope. Minor letters were presented to Caroline Mc-Millan, Clara Critchfield, Kathleen Cummings, Gretchen Feiker, Mary Ferry, and Mildred Loveless.

Numerals were awarded to members of the junior class team which defeated the seniors 2-0, the sophomores 4-0, and the freshmen 6-0 in the annual interclass tournament run off during Fall Sports Week.

HOCKEY

While none of the 124 George Washington women who chased hockey balls on the Ellipse last fall equalled the All-American game exhibited by their coach, Miss Agnes Rogers, great potentialities were displayed. The inglorious outcome of the trip to Hood to participate in the Tri-College Sports Day with Hood and Goucher, where our teams lost to Goucher and to our hosts, was merely the bad beginning which in athletics so frequently predicates a good ending.

The interclass series, under the direction of Miss Rogers, manager Florence Hedges, and assistant managers Margaret Graves, Ruth Critchfield, and Henrietta Hobson, brought forth some splendid playing and uncommonly keen competition. The keenest competition was between the combined junior-senior team and one of the strongest freshman teams George Washington has ever possessed. Both easily disposed of the sophomore team, but against each other played to a scoreless tie. In the play-off, however, the upperclassmen gained the championship by virtue of their 2-0 victory.

Members of the honorary varsity team were Louise Cox, Mary Lee Watkins, Charlotte Hazard, Leila Holly, and Mary Haley, to whom major letters were awarded at the annual Fall Sports banquet of the Women's Athletic Association. Catherine Crane, Margaret Graves, Blanche Horner, Patsy Joyes, Hortense Herman, and Henrietta Hobson received minor letters. The members of the junior-senior team were awarded their numerals at the same time.

BASKETBALL

The basketball season this year at G. W. brought out seventy women, which compares favorably with last year's number. Miss Helen Lawrence coached the team, while Catherine Crane filled the position of student manager. Assistant class managers included Louise Cox, senior; Marion Erwin, junior;

Ruth Critchfield, sophomore; and Margaret Graves, freshman.

The most important event of the season was the Sports Day with Goucher and Hood, yearly collegiate rivals, in the Goucher gym on February 24.

The interclass games were run off in groups during the week of February 20. From those who participated in the class games, the odd - even teams were picked and from these in turn the honorary varsity team which played the Alumnae at the end of the season.

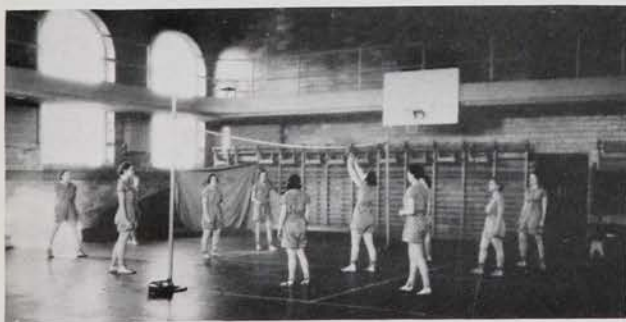

CRANE
Manager Basketball

At the annual winter sports banquet of the Women's Athletic Association major and minor letters were awarded and those on the winning class team received numerals.

VOLLEY BALL

Volley ball, this season, brought out approximately seventy players and from these the class teams were chosen. The interclass tournament, consisting of senior-freshman, junior, and sophomore teams, was run off during March. The members of the winning class team were awarded their numerals at the annual spring banquet of the Women's Athletic Association.

The sport was coached by Miss Agnes Rogers and managed by Mildred Loveless. Assistant class managers were Carol Wannar, senior; Eleanor Grollman, junior; Frances Wright, sophomore; and Irma Johnson, freshman. Volley ball was one of the features of the Hood-Goucher George Washington sports day at Hood College on October 28, and a large group of G. W. women played in the matches.

Manager Volley Ball

This sport is the youngest of the women's major sports, and the classes were held this year, for the first time, at the Y. W. C. A.

RIFLE

The 1933-34 rifle season began on November 1 with 115 women reporting, fifty of which were new aspirants. Five varsity members of the previous year returned, including Captain Virginia Dillman, Manager Naomi Myers, Mary Louise Yauch, Lorraine Lincoln, and Dorothy Catling. Jane Ficklin, Maxine Farley, Mary Spelman, Jean Christie, Dorothy Smith, Helen Bunten, Marjorie Seahorn, and Marjorie Harrison were chosen to complete the varsity squad. Promising freshmen of the past season are being counted on for next year's varsity; among them are Eleanor Lyle, Audrey Babcock, and Ruth Brewer.

MYERS
Manager Rifle Team

Among the interesting matches of the year was the one with Drexel Institute, which was shot shoulder to shoulder on the University range on February 3. All other matches were telegraphic. Other important events were the Women's Individual Intercollegiate Championship and the Women's Intercollegiate Team Championship of January and February. High score for the George Washington entrants in the Individual Championship was won by Naomi Myers, while the G. W. team placed third in the Team Championship meet. This makes the eighth year that the latter has been sponsored by the National Rifle Association and our team has won it four years, the record of 1927 by the George Washington team still being the highest ever shot.

The coach for the past few years has been Helen Taylor Hanford, a George Washington graduate, who was one of the outstanding shots of the University during her undergraduate years. Her training was received from Dr. Walter R. Stokes, first coach of the team and former Olympic champion. She placed second twice in the Individual Championship.

The individual squad match took place in February and the gold medal was awarded to Ruth Brewer with a score of 488. The women making the highest score in this match were chosen for the class teams and the class match was held in March, the winners being members of the upper class team. The outstanding shot for the year was Maxine Farley, transfer from Indiana.

SWIMMING

The highlight of this season in swimming was an intercollegiate telegraphic meet. Teams representing practically every university and college along the Atlantic seaboard and the middle west participated in the event, which was directed by the University of Pittsburgh. An interclass meet and a telegraphic match with Swarthmore College climaxed a successful season for the George Washington women's swimming teams, which were capably coached by Agnes Rogers and participated in by nearly fifty women.

Betty Elfelt took individual honors in the interclass meet with fifteen points and received the annual award of a silver loving cup, while the 1934 class team carried the day by a narrow margin over the class of 1936. The Swarthmore team competing in four events defeated G. W. by a score of 19-5.

Major letters were awarded at the Women's Athletic Association's spring banquet to Betty Elfelt, Janet Young, Virginia Dillman, Catherine Crane, and Lorraine Craig. Inez Ingham, Caroline McMillen, Mary Ireland, and Lee Harvin received minor awards.

A swimming club for all interested in the sport is maintained throughout the year and swims at the Y. W. C. A. pool weekly. This club as well as the entire swimming season was successfully directed by Nancy Booth, swimming manager.

TENNIS

The spring and fall classes of tennis were sufficient evidence that this sport is not declining in popularity. They contained many eager beginners as well as veterans at the game. Martha Myers, a member of the senior team and possessor of a major letter, was elected manager of the sport. She was later replaced by Hortense Gifford.

A noteworthy example of the high place held by this sport in the activities of the campus was the exhibition featured by the Women's Athletic Department for the mothers of students on the annual Mother's Day. It consisted of a match played by Antoinette Fletcher, Camille Jacobs, Leila Holley, and Gretchen Feiker.

Manager Tennis

The annual fall Sports Day with Hood and Goucher at Hood College in October featured a bridge tennis tournament with players changing partners as in bridge and no interschool competition.

The tennis finals took place on the Monument courts on December 5, as part of the Homecoming celebration and as the finals to the Physical Education Department's annual fall Sports Week.

Betty Cochran defeated Frances Thompson for the University championship. Antoinette Fletcher and Marian Erwin reached the semi-finals. On December 6 at the Women's Athletic Association's fall banquet the champion received the tennis cup, which is awarded annually. An exhibition tennis match won by Virginia Dillman was also a feature of the Homecoming program.

An interclass tournament took place during the spring program. Mrs. Ruth Aubeck Foster coached the sport for both seasons.

GOLF

Golf, the ancient sport of the Scotch Highlands, is rapidly assuming its rightful place among the most popular minor outdoor sports offered to women at George Washington University. Tournaments are played in the spring and fall on the East Potomac Park Links. Match play, that is, play by holes, was used in scoring.

Because of its recent introduction to the University, golf has not yet been made a class sport. The Physical Education Department, however, hopes more students will take advantage of the excellent instruction given by Miss Agnes Rogers by joining the golf classes. Class matches are being anticipated for next year.

Two silver cups are awarded each year in golf by the Women's Athletic Association board. One is given in the spring, the other in the fall. These cups rotate, and if either is won by the same person for three consecutive times, it becomes the winner's permanent possession.

Ten contestants entered the tournament this year, which was won by Betty Shipp. Virginia Dillman was runner-up. Virginia Pope, manager of golf, and holder of the Junior Championship of the District of Columbia, had formerly won three tournaments at the University.

ARCHERY

Archery is one of the most picturesque sports for women offered by the Physical Education Department, and the classes this year enjoyed the additional benefit of the new range near the Lincoln Memorial pool. The sport was coached by Mrs. Ruth Aubeck Foster, and classes were scheduled during both the spring and fall seasons.

Elections for managers were held at the beginning of the school term, resulting in the choice of Helen Bunten as general manager, Honore Noyes as senior manager, and Janet Feiker as junior manager.

Individual tournaments for beginners and advanced students culminated in a victory for Natalie Hicks in the former contest, while Honore Noyes carried away the cup awarded annually by the Women's Intramural Board to the winner of the tournament for advanced students. Minor letters were presented to the high scorers in the tournaments: Helen Waters, Honore Noyes, Helen Bunten, and Natalie Hicks.

A more far flung recognition was secured by the advocates of the bow and arrow at the Hood College tournaments during the fall Sports Day between that college, Goucher College, and George Washington. Helen Bealke was successful there in securing first honors for beginners. A tournament between beginning and advanced students, in which the former were victorious, was a feature of last year's Homecoming.

BASEBALL

Joe Cronin's pennant winning Senators did not exhibit more batting power than that displayed by the women's sophomore baseball team here last spring during the interclass tournament. In their game with the freshmen, the sophomores gathered in nine runs as their opponents were amassing six, and when pitted against the senior-junior team they batted out a one-run victory. Not Babe Ruth, but Miss Agnes Rogers coached the teams; and not Joe Cronin, but Mary Haley managed them.

Members of the winning sophomore team who received their numerals at the annual spring banquet of the Women's Athletic Association were Frances Thompson, Virginia Pope, Reba Barton, Mary Haley, Isabel Elms, Marion Erwin, Florence Grady, Mary Terill, Virginia

Dennis, and Gretchen Feiker.

An honorary varsity team was selected which was composed of Frances Thompson, Reba Barton, Alicia Mooney, Gretchen Feiker, and Grace Haley, to whom major letters were awarded; and Mary Haley, Virginia Pope, Helen Chafee, and Florence Grady, who received minor letters.

RIDING

The riding classes at George Washington University meet every Wednesday and Saturday. At these times the group under the direction of Miss Ruth Harriet Atwell rides from the Washington Riding Academy to the various bridle paths of the city.

In the spring a riding show and tea culminated the activities of the University classes and riding club. A silver cup was awarded Alice Kennedy for general excellence and high point score, while blue ribbons were received by the runners-up.

The riding club is unique among sports clubs at the University in the fact that its membership is composed of both men and women. The officers of the club this year were: Virginia McDonnell, president;

Manager Riding

Laurie Hess, vice-president, and Mary Kelly, secretary-treasurer.

DANCING

For the development of grace and rhythm, dancing is offered on the winter program of the Women's Physical Education Department for women. Either clog, rhythmic, or folk dancing may be chosen, according to the individual tastes of the student. The classes, under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Aubeck Foster, are held at the Y. W. C. A. four days a week. The annual program is terminated by a student recital given in March by the members of all the classes.

An event sponsored this year by the department for the second time was the Dance Symposium in March. A program of dancing offered by groups from eight different colleges and universities with a discussion following each exhibition comprised the program. This idea was initiated two years ago in New York and has since gained popular approval.

Aside from regular classes, rhythmic dancing is offered to those students who excel in it by Orchesis. This group, under the presidency of Catherine Fox and the faculty direction of Mrs. Foster, meets weekly and works out special projects. Their most ambitious effort during the past year was "Holy Night," a Christmas pageant presented at Pierce Hall, illustrating the interesting work done by Orchesis. The group also presented a special number in conjunction with the Dance Symposium held in March.

INTRAMURALS

The Intramural organization at George Washington is formed as a means of providing athletic participation and enjoyment for all women's groups within the University, as a supplement to the regular class sports program.

To be eligible for Intramural competition, a woman must have been registered in this or any other university for at least two semesters previous to the one in which she participates in sports. Also anyone who possesses a major or minor letter in any sport, or who is majoring in Physical Education is barred from Intramurals. The desire of the Intramural Board is to furnish healthful athletics to those who, in many cases, are not attracted by the more strenuous class sports.

A varied program was sponsored by the board this year. The following tournaments comprised its sports calendar: November, volley ball; December, ping pong; January, novelty swimming meet; February, league bowling; March, elimination bowling; April and May, tennis and horseshoes. A great interest in these sports was manifest by the large number of women taking an active part in Intramurals. Not only the contesting teams but also the spectators enjoyed the numerous matches.

Fourteen organizations were represented in Intramurals this year: Alpha Delta Pi, Alpha Delta Theta, Alpha Epsilon Phi, Chi Omega, Colonial Campus Club, Delta Zeta, Kappa Delta, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Phi Delta, Phi Mu, Phi Sigma Sigma, Pi Beta Phi, Sigma Kappa, and Zeta Tau Alpha. Orchesis, the dance group, and "Finns," the swimming club, are also under the supervision of the Intramural Board.

SPAULDING
Manager Intramurals

Each year the Intramural Board awards a cup and plaque to the team having the highest score. This score is computed as follows: 10 points for each first place, 5 points for each second place in the tournaments. Alpha Delta Pi won the award this year with Sigma Kappa as runner-up.

Edith Spaulding was chairman of the board, assisted by Ruth Young, secretary, and Hortense Gifford, treasurer. Miss Ruth Atwell acted in the capacity of advisor.

The Intramural Board is proud to announce that this year a new group, The Colonial Campus Club became affiliated with it. A Junior College team participated for a short while in the sports but was later forced to withdraw. It is sincerely hoped that the interest in Intramural Sports will continue to grow until in the near future each women's organization and each college in the George Washington University will be represented by a complete team in each sport.

THE MAJORS

One of the most interesting and at the same time most vital phases of the Women's Sports field at The George Washington University is the group of students who are majoring in physical education. Popularly known as "The Majors," this group has increased so rapidly in size in the past few years that many of the high lights of the past season have been largely due to their enthusiasm and diligence.

Perhaps one of the most ambitious undertakings of the season was the Junior High School Play Day, sponsored by the major students and the staff of the Physical Education Department for Women. On March 24, more than 125 young girls representing eleven junior high schools in Washington gathered at the Y. W. C. A. for a program of sports and games under the guidance of the major physical education students representing The George Washington University. As these girls registered they were divided into color teams, these teams numbering twelve in all. Individual games such as floor golf, dart archery, stunts, and tenequoits formed the first part of the program. Following this the team did a number of folk dances under the direction of Miss Ruth Atwell. Stunt relays occupied the hour before luncheon. At lunch entertainment was furnished by the delegation from each school in the form of skits of all kinds. The major group from George Washington presented a skit in which each sport offered at George Washington was portrayed.

Following lunch, the color teams competed in bowling, stunts, tumbling, and progressive dodge ball. The afternoon quickly passed in the excitement of these contests and it was not until 4:30 that the play day ended in a blaze of glory. Awards were made to the high point teams; blue ribbons for first place, red for second, white for third. The entire group joined in a program of songs and one more unusual achievement of the Major Group became history.

During the Easter Holidays, Edith Grosvenor, Annabelle McCullough, Mary Lee Watkins, Gretchen Feiker, all major students, and Miss Agnes Rogers, of the Physical Education Staff, attended the annual convention of the Eastern Division of the American Physical Education Association at Atlantic City. The group motored to the coast resort and spent four grand days attending meetings and doing all the other things which are a part of any convention. Enthusiastic accounts of the convention were given by all when they returned to the University and reported to their classmates.

These are only two of the exciting and worthwhile things that the major physical education students do. In the spring there are camping trips; in the fall, special hockey trips and so on through the year. These special trips are not always limited to the major students, but are often open to all enthusiastic sportswomen. It is the major group that invariably forms the nucleus, however, just as they really form the center and ever progressive force of the whole physical education program.
